

Town rejected as beneficiary of Richardson Estate

Wilmington Community Farm identified as possible recipient

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Pressure from impatient charities, among other concerns, caused the trustee of the Winifred Richardson estate to reject the town as beneficiary of the 5.7-acre parcel at 280 Woburn Street, despite a plan developed by the Historic Commission.

Selectmen reviewed a letter Monday that was sent late last month to Town Manager Michael Cairra from the law firm representing trustee Bob Eckberg.

"This letter is intended to serve as formal notification to the Town of the Trustee's determination...that the town is not an appropriate recipient of 280 Woburn Street," wrote Attorney Jeffrey Zellers.

Essentially, the will of Winifred Richardson stipulated that if the town did not accept the property then the Trustee would designate a suitable replacement beneficiary within one year of the anniversary of her death.

UniFirst boss goes undercover

Wilmington company featured on Undercover Boss

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Locally based UniFirst was featured on the hit CBS reality series on CBS Undercover Boss last Sunday. Viewers saw little of Wilmington, but were instead treated to an inside look at a company that reflects the family-centric, hometown values that are a hallmark of this town.

Ronald Croatti, President and Chief Executive Officer of UniFirst Corporation, donned a white, long-haired wig and a matching mustache to see if he could work alongside several of his employees around the country unnoticed, to better understand their jobs and to see if any improvements might be warranted.

"Despite the fact I had some difficulties performing many of the various tasks, I was please to see the systems and procedures we have in place to ensure quality and customer satisfaction are working nicely in the field," Croatti said. "The Team Partners who 'trained' me were all exemplary workers who treated me and other co-workers with dignity and respect. And that's extremely important to me because it means our founding family values and family culture are also well entrenched throughout our company."

Reaction around the company following the airing of the program was "overwhelmingly positive," Ken Tokarz, a corporate spokesman, told the Crier. "It's been the buzz in the building [Monday] morning."

The company also began receiving hundreds of unsolicited emails to the website with an overwhelming majority generated from viewers that saw the program and nearly all of it positive toward the company. The website About.com even launched an

Fire fighter contract finalized

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Selectmen unanimously approved a new three-year contract with fire-fighters, carrying the agreement through the end of fiscal 2012.

"It's a fair contract," said Board of Selectmen Chair,

Lou Cimaglia. "It's similar to what all other departments agreed to."

The collective bargaining agreement was agreed upon November 22 and the Fire Fighters Union, the International Association of

DPW looks ahead to 2011

Nichols Street Bridge in the works

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Bridges, culverts, and roads... Oh my! DPW Superintendent Donald Onusseit is not worried about the work before his department this year, however, and took time from his winter storm preparation schedule to talk to the Crier about the Department of Public Works' outlook for 2011.

Damaged in floods last March, the Nichols Street bridge, also known in Billerica as the Whipple Road bridge and in Tewksbury as the Brown Street bridge, still remains closed to traffic. Both Billerica and Wilmington share ownership of the bridge, though it is a major access point for Tewksbury's emergency services to reach residents in the Brown Street neighborhood. Though the spring floods of 2010 were declared a federal disaster, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) denied funding to help repair the damage caused by the flooding, leaving the towns holding the bag.

When the bridge first closed most calls for repairs came from commuters traveling from Tewksbury through to Billerica and Burlington. All three towns are working together now on the design and permitting necessary for the bridge repair and a meeting will be arranged next week for the towns to come to agreement on the scope of the project, enabling movement

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

Wilmington blood spilt at Gettysburg

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - "Four score and seven years ago" are the immortal words of Abraham Lincoln, in his Gettysburg Address, delivered in November 1863, some four months after the Battle of Gettysburg.

There is another Gettysburg address, and it rises from the same battle — Colgrove Avenue near Spangler Meadow in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. That is the location of a memorial to the men killed defending Culp's Hill on the third day of the battle. On that monument are the names of three men from Wilmington, Massachusetts.

Culp's Hill is not the most famous part of the battle of Gettysburg. There is Little Roundtop, where the 20th Maine held the end of the Union line, preventing a Confederate flanking. When the 20th ran low on ammunition, Col. Joshua Chamberlain ordered a bayonet charge, completely surprising the Confederates.

And there is Pickett's

Charge, the last futile effort of the Confederates at Gettysburg. The loss sent Lee limping back South, his image of invincibility shattered.

The fighting at Culp's Hill took place on the second and third days of the battle, July 2 and 3, 1863. The XII Corps, which included the Second Massachusetts Infantry, conducted a brilliant defense of Culp's Hill.

On the third day, there was a futile attack by two Union regiments near Spangler's

Spring. General Slocum, observing from a distant hill and believing that the Confederates were faltering, ordered troops to retake the works the Confederates had captured. The order was passed and it was misinterpreted to mean a direct frontal assault on the Confederate position. The two regiments selected for the assault, the 2nd Massachusetts and the 27th Indiana, with a total of 650 men against the 1,000 Confederates behind the works, with 100 yards of open field in front. When Lt. Col. Charles Mudge of the 2nd Massachusetts heard the order he insisted that the officer repeat it. He was then quoted as saying "Well, it is murder, but it's the order." The two regiments attacked in sequence with the Massachusetts men in front, and they were both repelled with terrific losses: 43% of the Massachusetts soldiers, 32% of the Indianans. General Thomas Ruger spoke of the misconstrued order as "one of those unfortunate occurrences that will happen in the excitement of battle."

Three men from Wilmington died in that futile assault or from wounds received there. George Bailey, Ted Butters and James Edmonds are among the men honored on that monument.

The Second Massachusetts Infantry was the first volunteer organization to leave Massachusetts for action in the Civil War. It became one of the most outstanding regiments in the war for the Union Army. It was not officered by politicians, but by a West Pointer, Col. George H. Gordon. Sixteen of the officers were Harvard men, and 13 of those would lose their lives in the war.

Recruiting began on the 25th of April, 1862, when a recruiting office opened on State Street in Boston.

In Woburn, 49 men formed a company. On May 25, a group of young men from Wilmington were accepted into the regiment. Town Hall records do not agree with state records as to who was who. Town records list 12 men, but state records only have ten in Company G, Second Regiment.

Joining the Second Massachusetts on May 25 were George B. Bailey, Thomas A. Bancroft, Theodore S. Butters, James T. Edmonds (of Billerica), Simeon Jaquith (of Woburn), John E. James, Charles A. Nichols (maybe of Lawrence), Hiram Pearson (of Tewksbury), Henry E. Stickney, Elbridge G. Taylor, and John H. White.

George Bailey lived on Chestnut Street, near Butters Row. George was 23 when he ral in March 1863.

Ted Butters was wounded on the third day of Gettysburg, July 3, 1863, on Culp's Hill. A bullet passed through his leg, shattering the bone. As was so common in the Civil War, his leg was amputated by surgeons. He died on July 30.

enlisted. He was taken prisoner in August 1862 near Manassas Junction. He returned to duty on October 26. He was killed in action at Gettysburg on July 3, 1863.

Thomas Theodore Butters was born on Butters Row May 21, 1841, the son of Lorenzo and Angeline Butters. Lorenzo was a good mathematician, a great reader and was able to quote extensively from the poetry of the day. He was a selectman and was also on the school committee for the South School. Each school had such a committee at that time.

Their home was very near the old Middlesex Canal and the old South School in a part of town where there were many Butters families. Ted Butters was a seventh generation descendant of Will Butter, who was probably the first white settler in what is now Wilmington.

Judging from the records, Ted Butters was a capable soldier. He was made a corpo-1863 at age 22.

Communications and transportation had been developed in the Northeast, and Ted's 18-year-old sister Lucilia learned via telegraph that he had been wounded. She took a train to Gettysburg to be with him, but arrived on July 31, the day after he died.

James T. Edmonds is shown in the Wilmington records as being a Wilmington resident, but he probably lived in Billerica. He was 29 when he enlisted, probably the oldest of the Wilmington men. His occupation was listed as teamster.

Edmonds was wounded at the Battle of Cedar Mountain, Virginia on August 9, 1862. He recovered and was returned to action. Then he was wounded at Culp's Hill in Gettysburg on July 3, 1863. He died of his wounds on July 20.

Mayor blasts parole board Passage of 'Melissa's bill' urged

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - An irate Mayor Scott Galvin demanded the resignation of the state Parole Board last Thursday during a press conference to address the circumstances of officer John Maguire's death last month.

"The murder of Officer Maguire at the hands of a worthless, violent, career felon has outraged the good citizens of Woburn," said Galvin. "The fact that the perpetrator was released on parole in 2009 by the full-time Parole Board while serving three life sentences has exponentially intensified our outrage."

Maguire, 60, a Wilmington resident and 34-year veteran of the force, was gunned down by Domenic Cinelli, 57, who was on parole despite being sentenced to three life terms. Cinelli had just robbed jewelry from the Kohl's department store in East Woburn and was attempting to run to a getaway car parked on nearby Richard Circle when he was intercepted by Maguire. Both men died in the ensuing exchange of gunfire during a blizzard the day after Christmas.

"The derelict who murdered Officer Maguire had a 9-page record consisting of one violent felony act after another, since he was 18 years of age," said Galvin. "The probability that he would violate the law if he was released, based on his history was obvious."

"The decision to ignore or discount this history, based in part on a pathetic, self-serving plea by a desperate career violent felon serving three life sentences is inexcusable," added the mayor.

"I respectfully call on the Governor to extend the same demand for resignation to each member of the Parole Board as he has recently done with his cabinet secretaries and senior officials," Galvin said.

"The Parole Board's failure to protect officer Maguire, the members of the Woburn Police Dept., and the good, law-abiding, hard-working residents of Woburn demands nothing less," he concluded.

Two Wakefield men were also arrested after the robbery.

Scott Hanwright, 19, who allegedly served as Cinelli's lookout, was charged with first degree murder and armed robbery.

Kevin Dingwell, 41, was charged with being an accessory after he reportedly responded to Hanwright's request for a ride after the robbery.

Both men are due back in court on Friday, Jan. 28.

Speaking publicly for the first time since Maguire's funeral on Dec. 31, Woburn Police Chief Philip Mahoney was still clearly shaken by Maguire's murder. He called Maguire's death "a great loss" and said 40 percent of his officers have since undergone either debriefing or counseling.

Flanked by some 75 of his fellow Massachusetts police chiefs and several dozen Woburn police officers, he also blasted those responsible for Cinelli's release.

"This was a guy who was not going to ever go back to jail," said Mahoney. "He was either going to get away or die."

Mahoney said the consequences of Cinelli reaching Richard Circle on foot would have been devastating, as the likelihood of him opening fire in a residential neighborhood was high.

"He's my hero, and he's the hero of the residents over there," said Mahoney.

The chief also cited the dignity and class with which the Maguire family has carried itself throughout the tragedy.

Maguire's wife, Desiree, was due to arrive at City Hall on Wednesday afternoon to fill out some paperwork, but stopped by police headquarters first.

"She came there to see how I was doing and how my department was doing," said Mahoney. "I just can't tell you what a lovely lady she is."

Chuck Maguire, Jack's brother, represented the family at the press conference and also had harsh words for the parole board. A former employee of the probation department who worked at Woburn District Court, he said the breadth and depth of Cinelli's record was so egregious that a 3-year-old would have known enough to not let him out on parole.

Chuck Maguire also spoke fondly of his brother, who considered his police work more like a hobby than a job. He recalled he and Jack "grew up in a police car" as the sons of former Woburn Chief Thomas Maguire.

After suffering a heart attack last year, Jack Maguire was about to transfer from the night shift to the day shift at the beginning of the year before he decided to "call it quits," according to his brother.

But, Chuck Maguire recalled, as recently as a family Christmas party, Jack wanted to get together with another family member "to talk about his investments." "He wasn't prepared to die," said Chuck.

Chuck said it was entirely within his brother's character to believe the best in people, even a felon like Cinelli.

"I would have been shooting first," said Chuck Maguire. "He waited that extra second, and it cost him his life."

Chuck Maguire also thanked all the law enforcement officials who attended and coordinated his brother's funeral, and said he was especially grateful for all the support his family has received from the public at-large, who lined the streets during the funeral procession from Woburn to the Shriners Auditorium, where the service was held last Friday.

Melissa's Law

Another rallying point during Thursday's press conference was for the consideration of "Melissa's bill," named after Melissa Gosule, a Quincy resident who was murdered on July 11, 1999, by a repeat offender.

Melissa's father, Les Gosule, urged the public to contact their legislators to demand passage of the bill, which he said has been stuck in a legislative committee.

"How many times do we have to weep ... before they give us public safety?" asked Gosule. "It's common sense; a no-brainer. So why doesn't it pass?"

Northborough Police Chief Mark Leahy, President of the Mass. Chiefs of Police Association, also blasted the Parole Board for its decision to release Cinelli.

"Any clear-thinking person should have known (it) should not have happened," said Leahy.

Gov. Patrick has ordered a review of the circumstances that led to Cinelli's release, a report which Leahy said he will "anxiously await."

"I cannot rush to judgment; I need to see what that report says, but if every member of that Parole Board resigned tomorrow, I would be happy," said Mahoney.

The chief said the one element of requal that he has permitted himself is the knowledge that Cinelli is no longer able to commit any more crimes.

"The Parole Board will never have an opportunity to parole him again," said Mahoney.

NEW SMALL-BUSINESS INCENTIVES

Last year's stimulus bills include a number of tax and lending incentives for small business to improve their access to capital and ease their tax burden.

Unused small business credits accrued last year can be carried back five years, instead of the usual one year, and then carried forward 25 years, instead of 20. This is for closely held firms with average annual gross receipts below $50 million. The credits can offset regular taxes and alternative minimum taxes, too. Also new: the recognition period for built-in gains after conversion to an S corporation is down to five years from ten.

The dollar limit on expensing the cost of equipment purchases and qualified upgrading, last year and this, is now up to $500,000; it had been as low as $25,000 for this year. That limit will start to phase out when total purchases top $2 million. Deductions for startup costs have been eased, too.

Letters to the editor

McCue family grateful

Dear Editor,
We would like to take this opportunity to thank so many people who assisted us in making Dave McCue, Sr.'s celebration of life a huge success.
First and foremost, Margaret McKenna and Staff of Nichols Funeral Home did an outstanding job with all of the preparations from family viewings to the blizzard changes and arrangements. Every detail was handled so professionally. Wilmington's Police and Fire Departments - to all of the officers who went beyond their scope of duty to honor Dave. Chuck DePasquale of Rocco's for staying in the blizzard to feed us after the wake. And, finally, Wilmington's DPW - especially Jerry Lawrenson for making our streets safe for all of Wilmington.

We, the family, were so proud of all of his family and friends who came out in such blizzard conditions to honor such a great man.

Our heartfelt thanks to everyone.

Cheering on the cheerleaders

Dear Editor,
It was a pleasure to see the picture of the A-Team cheerleaders taking the front page of the sports section of the Town Crier recently upon becoming the National Cheerleading Champion in the Advanced Division in Florida. This is a goal that most of them have been chasing since they starting tumbling when they were toddlers or when they started cheerleading at a very early age.

Cheerleading teams from Wilmington have placed in the top three at the National Championship, some have won first place on another Wilmington team, but none of the current cheerleaders for the A-team have ever before secured a first place win on the A-team. This is truly a BIG accomplishment and would be comparable to the football teams winning the National Super Bowl, which would be considered a huge accomplishment in Wilmington.

The cheerleaders continue to struggle, however, with the respect of some of the community. I bring this issue to the top because it should be disturbing to any parent, but especially parents who sat in the stands watching the football games week after week criticizing these young ladies. They attended the games every week rain or shine, hot or cold, cheering for the same team that parents cheered to victory. Whether you agree with what they were wearing to keep themselves warm, or the cheers that they were performing or not performing, or whether you agree with the concepts of the program, remember that these girls also have friends, siblings and parents that sat beside these parents in the stands and on the field at every practice and every game hoping that all of the football and cheerleading teams would make it to the super bowl and cheered them on every step of the way. Some of those parents have family members and spouses that have dedicated countless hours of dedication to the program and should be applauded for their time and effort. Most of the routines that they perform cannot be performed at the games on Sundays because of the risk of difficulty. Take the time to watch them perform at the cheerleading competition on ESPN or watch their performance on the Pop Warner website or actually take the time to go to one of the competitions and you may have a newfound respect for their talent. The same effort, time and not to mention the expenses paid by their parents, if not more, has gone into achieving their goal as it has for every other athlete in Wilmington. Support all your town's athletes; they all work really hard to achieve their goals!!!!

Can anyone answer?

To the Editor;
Over the last 8.5 months I have been following every source available very closely looking for any information related to the 1.2 million dollar Feasibility Study associated with the High School. The most recent articles published and the RFS advertised last week leads me to believe that it has been decided that a New 80 million dollar is to be planned and designed ASAP. Can anyone answer definitively what the status of this project is as of today? If it calls for the demolition of the current High School (a perfectly fine structure) I am adamantly opposed to such an idea or plan. And would rather see any costs associated with that notion invested in teacher salaries. Please feel free to Friend me on Facebook or email at Nelson.Selectman@yahoo.com

guest Op-Ed

By State Senator Barry Finegold

I am deeply saddened by what happened to Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords this past weekend. I did not know her well, but we crossed paths from time to time, and as a public official what happened to her hits close to home.

Over the next few days, people and political pundits will try to interpret this event in many ways. I don't believe one thing or one group led to this awful act. We don't know the facts yet, and it could turn out that this particular attack was not politically motivated. However, this is perhaps the opportunity to take a step back and evaluate whether what we are saying and how we are saying it is contributing to a healthy democratic discourse. I am concerned that the violent terms in which we now refer to the exercise of democracy and the exchange of ideas are creating a political atmosphere where we cannot disagree without hatred. The way we speak to each other, how we discuss our differences, and the way we react when we don't like someone's position on a matter of policy has changed for the worse. I believe this shift may lead to individuals taking action like we saw in the events of this weekend. Everything has become personal instead of objective and reasoned - look no further than when we call health care "Obamacare," or when the debate over our involvement in Afghanistan and Iraq was raging it was "Bush's War." It gets worse when you have interest groups like MoveOn or the Tea Party preaching the sentiments of "taking our country back." Words matter and how we communicate will dictate the type of democracy we have.

Everyone is guilty of this: the media, political parties, and yes, even the public. We all share in the fact that this is what our political discourse has become. Don't mistake this atmosphere for that of strong debate and difference of opinion. I know that I am a better elected official because of all those who have disagreed with my positions and made me really analyze and consider the votes I take. And strong opinions, and the ability to express them, are inextricably linked to a healthy democracy. Debating and disagreement are not the problem - this pervasive lack of respect for those with differing opinions is what has gotten us here. We must rebuild our respect for others, even in the face of great disagreement.

All of us must consider how we voice these beliefs and the actions that we take pursuant to them. There are many ways that Beacon Hill needs to improve, but one thing done right is that when lawmakers debate, they are never allowed to personally criticize by name any member of the body. You can argue for hours why a bill is a bad idea, but it can never be personal. I believe we need to shift our debate in this direction; ideas may be wrong, but people deserve our respect and consideration.

I ask every person in the media, every elected official, and every person out there to re-think how they address people when they disagree and how they debate those differences. I know I will. We are the greatest country in the world, but when we get to a point where debate is stymied for fear of physical reprisal, the freedom we all enjoy is in jeopardy. Remember that in addition to critically wounding an elected official, the assailant in Arizona murdered three elderly individuals, a judge, a legislative assistant to Congresswoman Giffords, and a 9 year-old girl. We can honor them and their memories by changing the way we treat each other.

Around the Dial with WCTV

includes great shows like: "Healthy Hypnosis" from Burlington, "Money Talk" from Danvers and "After Hours with T.C. Restani" of Melrose.

Now why, you ask, would someone, as busy as we all are in this day and age take the time to learn to use a camera and edit? Well, we asked some of our loyal volunteers just that and the upshot of what they said is this: "Because it's good for the town!" We have volunteers who have been with WCTV since the 1990's - talk about commitment to our town!

Some of our volunteers have had an interest in video since they were kids with cameras - now they get to work with bigger, more hi-tech cameras! Others were interested in learning more about the field and felt that WCTV was a way to gain knowledge and experience and have fun doing it!

And some of our younger volunteers look at WCTV as a way to "practice" for a job in the "real world."

No matter what someone's reason or motivation for volunteering is, the common goal is the same - to share with our community all of the interesting things that happen in Wilmington and beyond. We at WCTV are truly grateful for our volunteers. We simply could not bring you all of the wonderful programming that we do without them! Still, there is more to be done, especially for WHS sports coverage!

We'd love to bring you all of the teams who play sports in Wilmington but without volunteer support sadly, that idea will remain wishful thinking. Wishful thinking, that is, until you volunteer.

So why not come down, take a look at WCTV and see if there might be something here for you. Whether it's learning how to use a camera, being part of a crew, learning about radio, studio production or editing or just helping out with the many projects we are working on - you won't be disappointed and you won't be wasting your time! You will be giving back to your community! Then the next time you tune in maybe you'll look at your TV screen and say, "Hey-that's the program I worked on!" and you can feel good about that!

Steve Morse of the Boston Globe wrote, "Brad's street smart humor makes everybody in the audience feel like they grew up next door to him."

Vince Longo, General Manager of the South Shore

Music Theater, said "It's not to often that someone grabs my attention like Brad did. He was hysterical, likable, and most importantly, clean. We can't wait to have him back."

As a frequent writer for Jay Leno's Tonight Show monologue, Mastrangelo has held his own on the comedy circuit with such luminaries as; Lenny Clarke, Kevin James, Ray Romano and the legendary Pat Cooper, who said "Brad is a throwback to the old days. A gifted storyteller who doesn't have to use four letter words to get laughs.

Brad's high energy brand of family and observational comedy has earned him rave reviews from the top comedy clubs in Boston, Hollywood, Atlantic City, and Las Vegas comedy clubs. Your Two Cents...

When looking for a hero one need not look to the sports world or Hollywood. On Friday we said good-bye to a real-life hero in Officer Jack Maguire. All too often we throw the word 'hero' around without really thinking about it. A true hero is when one gives his or her own life so that others will be safer. Jack Maguire was a true hero.

Wilmington

Thumbs down to the dog walkers who fail to clean up after their dog on Amherst Street. From Shawsheen Ave to the top of the hill on Amherst Street, the sidewalk area is disgusting! You are giving other responsible dog owners a black eye so please clean up after your dog...you wouldn't want this to happen on your street! Thank you,

Wilmington

Thank You to Debbie and the Recreation Dept for the great seats on Dec 12 to see "A Christmas Carol" at the North Shore Music Theatre. It was almost like being on stage!

Wilmington

Wilmington's Firefighters received a 2 1/2 % raise in 2011 and another 2 1/2% raise in 2012 in a contract approved by the Board of Selectmen Monday (1/10/11) night. Once again, our municipal employees are outpacing the taxpayers in wage gains. Of course, this will also pad their pensions down the line. I wish the rest of us could do as well. Only our property taxes going up year after year can pay for this generosity.

RMLD meter upgrade begins in Wilmington

READING - Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) will continue its meter upgrade project on January 17. RMLD personnel will remove existing residential meters and install new ones.

Locations slated for upgrades in January include apartment and condo complexes located in Wilmington. Scheduled for the initial upgrade are:

- Whispering Pines
- Deming Way
- Regency Place

Customers whose meters require replacement will experience a brief outage of five minutes during the upgrade. Notices will be placed in the common area and on exterior doors of all complexes before the meter replacements. In addition, scheduling information will be posted on the RMLD website, www.rml.com and in the Wilmington newspapers. "While we hope to have a very fluid process, there is a possibility that areas scheduled for replacement may be rescheduled. We thank our customers for their patience during this project," said RMLD's Engineering and Operations Manager Kevin Sullivan.

"The meters scheduled for replacement are approximately 15 years old and are reaching the end of their useful life," Sullivan added. "The new meters will improve both efficiency and reliability, and will also offer the possibility of providing enhanced energy usage information to customers. If your meter has been replaced within the past few years, it may not need to be replaced."

Any questions or concerns should be directed to RMLD Customer Service at 781-944-1340 or 781-942-6598.

The young adult edition of The Omnivore's Dilemma is also available. Pollan explores the history and politics of food production and distribution, the relationship between the food we eat and our health, and the impact of food production on a sustainable earth. OBITUARIES

William Joseph Patrick Coady

Manager in the office of Financial Planning and Budget Management for MIT

KITTERY POINT, ME - William Joseph Patrick Coady, age 79, of Kittery Point, ME, formerly of Newton, MA, died Monday, January 10, 2011, at the Sentry Hill Nursing Care Center following a lengthy illness. Born on April 21, 1931 in Dorchester, MA, Bill was the devoted son of the late William and Mary (Foley) Coady. He was raised in the poor district of South Boston, Bill's father was a fisherman and would leave his family alone for several weeks at a time. Bill was responsible for his family when his father was away. For supplemental income Bill would sell newspapers as a young boy. Bill's mother was a housekeeper and would clean homes, he had two younger sisters Jean and Helen that he need to care for during the day while his mother was working and his father was away.

After Bill graduated from South Boston High School he joined the Air Force to make a better life for himself. He was sent to Greenland during the Korean War. Bill was ordered to go to Thule Air Force Base in Greenland; his orders were to watch for enemy crafts. Bill spent a lot of time working the grave yard shift. The guys would joke about being "Knights of the Blue Nose" because of the frigid temperatures they worked in and the elements they endured. The conditions for most in Greenland were unbearable with subzero temps and limited amount of daylight. After proudly serving his country Bill was honorably discharged on February 24, 1956.

After the war Bill took advantage of the GI bill. Coming from a family with little to no education he was encouraged by his friends to enroll in college. Upon walking in to Bentley College in Waltham, Bill realized that this was his calling. The first person he met was the founder and father of the College, Harry C. Bentley, who personally encouraged him to attend college. Bill was one of the first persons to graduate with a four year degree under the school of Accounting and Finance from Bentley. Later Bill entered Northeastern University and Suffolk University to further his education. During his college years Bill held various jobs such as working for a CPA firm, Insurance Company, doing individual taxes, and corporate taxes. He often tells folks about how he was the first ever in his family to graduate from a University.

Bill landed a job with Massachusetts Institute of Technology, MIT, in Cambridge, MA, in the early 70's. He became a manager in the office of Financial Planning and Budget Management and held his position full time for the next 25 years, and then continued to work part time for MIT for a grand total of 33 years. While working at MIT, Bill moved to Newton, MA, where he resided for many years before moving to Maine.

During this time Bill's family was experiencing hardships. His sister Jean became widowed when her fifth child was only one week old. Bill again stepped in to help support his family. Bill helped his sister raise her five children, they grew up calling him Uncle Joe. To this day both the children and his sister are very grateful to him. Bill never married, he remained a bachelor his whole life, but he had a full life and the love of his entire family and many friends.

Bill moved to Sentry Hill Nursing Care Center in York, ME, after a tragic accident. He stayed very active, helping in the recreation department with paper work on special occasions and other jobs. He enjoyed greeting staff members in the morning with his cup of coffee and his words of wisdom. Bill also had developed his own exercise program to keep fit. He enjoyed visits from his sister and other family members of a regular basis.

Bill was forever grateful for the opportunities and the privileges that were afforded him. By his hard work and perseverance, Bill has lived the American dream.

Bill was the beloved brother of Jean Sevigny & her husband Paul of Kittery Point, ME, formerly of Woburn, MA and the late Helen Prince and her husband Dr. Edward Prince of Newtonville, loving uncle of Maureen & Sam DeMango, and Jacqueline Aiesi all of Wilmington, Mary & Brian Conroy of Kittery Point, ME, Linda & Mark Conroy of Londonderry, NH, David & Caroline Prince and Maura Prince all of Newtonville, Stephen & Karen Prince of Florida, John Prince of South Boston, and the late Barbara Conroy, Paul Conroy, and Catherine Prince, Uncle Joe is also survived by many great-nieces & nephews.

Family & friends will gather at the Burke & Blackington Funeral Home, 1479 Washington St. (Rte. 16) West Newton, on Friday, January 14th at 8:00 a.m. followed by a Funeral Mass in Our Lady Help of Christians Church, 573 Washington St., Newton at 9:00 a.m. Interment Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn. Visiting hours Thursday, January 13th from 4-8 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations in William's name may be made to MIT, and mailed to Bonny Kellermann, Director of Memorial Gifts, 600 Memorial Drive, W98-500; Cambridge, MA 02139. <https://giving.mit.edu/giveno/w/ConfirmGift.dyn>

Austin Preparatory School Names Anthony J. Pimentel as New Board of Trustees Chairman

READING - Austin Preparatory School, located in Reading, MA, is proud to announce the appointment of Anthony J. Pimentel, of Andover, MA, as their newest Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Pimentel, a member of the board since 2002, fills the former chairmanship of Gus Niewenhous '72, who served the school for many years as a board member and most recently as Chairman. Niewenhous retired from the Board in August, 2010.

Pimentel is the father of two Austin Prep graduates: daughter Jill (Pimentel) Slye graduated in 1999 and son Matt followed in 2001. He first joined the Board of Trustees in 2002. He serves as the Chief Operating Officer for Sasso Construction in Wilmington, MA. His work on Austin's two major capital projects, including the construction of the Multi-Purpose facility in 2001 and the renovation of the former monastery into a new library and arts space in 2008, was critical to the success of both projects. In addition to his support of Austin's capital improvements, Pimentel is also a longstanding supporter of the annual Austin Open Golf Tournament.

Pimentel sees the decision to enroll his children at Austin as "the best decision I've ever made." He is proud of Austin's small class sizes, which allow faculty to get to know each student.

Looking ahead, Pimentel hopes to move forward with increasing the size and enhancing the structure of the board and strengthening communication among the board and faculty, administration and parents. He also intends to support the school's efforts to broaden the offerings available to students, particularly in the arts, while preserving the favorable student teacher ratios and comfortable scale for which Austin has become known. After more than ten years spent in the roles of parent, volunteer and trustee, Pimentel looks forward to taking on new challenges and responsibilities as Board Chairman.

COA meeting is next Wednesday 1/19

Sign-ups for the Foxwood day trip of Wednesday, February 9th began this past Monday. One may call the Center at 978-640-4480 to see if there are any vacancies.

The Council on Aging Meeting noted in last week's column was incorrect. The meeting is actually scheduled for next Wednesday, January 19th at 12:30 PM. The Director's apologies are extended for any confusion this may have caused.

The Red Hat Carnation Belles will hold a "Re-Gift Yankee Swap" evening next Wednesday, January 19th. The cost will be $4 per person and warm and cozy refreshments will be served. Belles are asked to purchase tickets no later than next Monday.

DJ Jon Mansfield will be back to the Senior Center for an afternoon of dancing on the last day of the month, Monday, January 31. Tickets are now available at $5 per person. Lunch is included if one purchases his/her ticket by January 26th. Those who purchased tickets for the December Mansfield dance which was cancelled due to a snow storm may turn their ticket in for the January 31st dance or for a refund.

AARP Tax Assistants will begin helping Tewksbury Seniors with their tax returns in February. Those interested in this free service are asked to sign-up at the Senior Center reception desk. A staff member or volunteer will contact those on the list to set up an appointment.

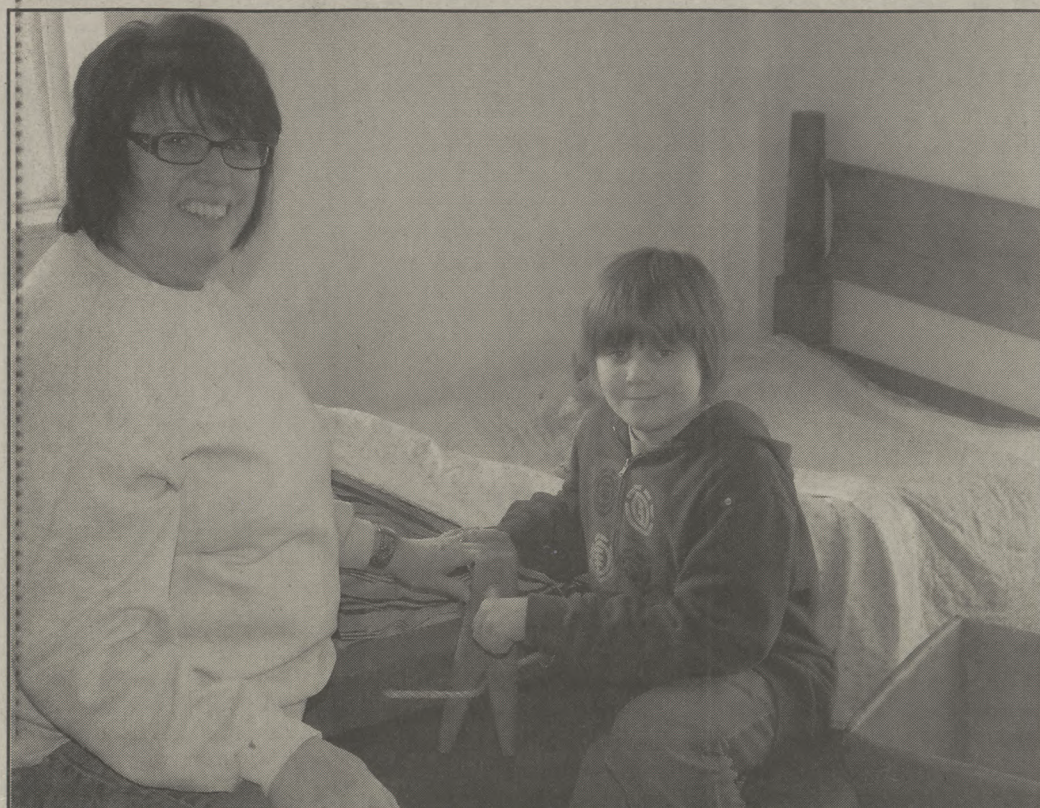

The Friends will hold a Valentine's Dance at the Senior Center on Friday, February 11th at 7:00 PM. Tickets are now available at $10 per person. At this dance the Friends and COA honor Tewksbury Couples who have celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary in the past year as well as those who are celebrating an Anniversary which is over 50 years but never acknowledged in the past. If you are one of these special couples or know of such a couple, please drop by the Senior Center or call 978-640-4480 and have your name and telephone number placed on the "Special Couples List". The Friends and COA would love to have you as their guests at the Valentine Dance.

Dr. Smith will conduct a Podiatry Clinic on Saturday, February 12th. This clinic is limited to the first 30 Tewksbury Senior Citizens who sign up. A $15 co-payment is due upon registration. Registrations are now being accepted.

Seniors are reminded that if the Tewksbury Schools are closed due to a snow storm the activities at the Senior Center are cancelled. In the event of a delayed opening of the schools due to a storm, Senior Citizens should call the Center to see if a morning class has been cancelled. Cancellations are contingent on the road conditions and whether or not the instructor will hold a class.

A pleasant week is wished to all. God Bless America

Michael Smith, a nine year old who loves history, learned about the rope bed in the children's bedroom of the Harnden Tavern during the open house on Sunday. Bonnie Smith gave Michael and his parents a tour of the house. Her father, Reggie Bishop, donated the bed to the town museum years ago.

Goulet named to new post at Cummings Properties

WOBURN - Fifteen-year Wilmington resident Caryn Goulet has been appointed to the newly created position of human resources manager at Cummings Properties. Dennis Clarke, president and CEO of the Woburn-based commercial real estate firm, attributed the new position to the continued, gradual growth of the suburban developer whose 10 million square foot portfolio includes several major properties on Concord Street and Fordham Road in Wilmington.

A graduate of Bryant University in Smithfield, RI, Goulet holds a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration. She is affiliated with the Society for Human Resource Management and Northeast Human Resources Association.

Goulet's experience in human resource management spans several industries, including high-tech, physical security, manufacturing, distribution, restaurant, and hotel. During her 20-year career, she has developed expertise in HR department start-ups; performance management; employee relations; policy and handbook development; succession planning; lifecycle staffing and retention; and payroll and benefits administration.

According to Clarke, "We have been very impressed with Caryn and the rich professional experience she is bringing to Cummings."

Cummings Properties, which employs more than 600 in its various entities, has never before had a professional human resource manager. Until now, Cummings' treasurer or CFO has directed most personnel matters.

Goulet commented, "It is

obvious, upon meeting with many folks at Cummings, that the HR function has been more than adequately handled for many years. I am looking forward to the opportunity to support what is in place and add value to the HR needs of the company and its staff."

In her spare time, Goulet enjoys coaching her daughter, Dana's soccer team with her husband Jim, and volunteering as a USSF official and mentor with her son, Mitch. She also serves as a volunteer coordinator for TOPSoccer, a community outreach program for children with special needs, as well as on the boards of directors for Wilmington Youth Soccer Association and Middlesex Youth Soccer League.

Cummings Properties is a full-service development, property management, and construction firm with 83 buildings in 10 eastern Massachusetts communities. It leases prime commercial space for offices, medical practices, and research laboratories to more than 2,000 clients of all sizes.

Wilmington Senior Topics

Welcome to 2011. We hope everyone had a wonderful holiday season and are ready for a fun and exciting New Year ahead. The Department of Elderly Services would like to first thank the many residents that participated in our Annual Giving Tree event, to Boy Scout Troop 56 that have been supportive for over seven years and to the Methodist Church for their generosity. This program would not have been possible without all the outpouring of generosity. There were over 250 recipients, who were overjoyed with appreciation. Thank you for making this such a wonderful success.

The Wilmington Department of Elderly Services will be providing the following series of four seminars at the Buzzell Senior Center, 15 School Street, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Chronic Disease Self Management Program

The Wilmington Department of Elderly Services is excited to once again offer "Chronic Disease Self Management Program," an innovative program developed by Stanford University, in January due to a grant given by Lahey Clinic Burlington. It teaches the skills needed in the day-to-day management of your chronic disease (such as arthritis, back problems, depression, diabetes and other similar problems) and to maintain and/or increase life's activities. The course covers: symptom management, dealing with negative emotions, effective problem solving, setting weekly goals, relaxation techniques, personalizing fitness, tips on eating well, medication management, improving communication with your doctor and being a more active member of your health team. The results of the past classes were extremely positive. The following were some of the comments made:

"I feel I have learned a lot during this time and I leave feeling highly motivated."

"By setting a goal to take my medications the way I am supposed to, my sugar levels are in much better control."

"A truly worthwhile technique taught to us was how to make and follow an ACTION PLAN every week... I actually looked forward to reaching and even surpassing my weekly action plan goals."

This six week course is free and the class will begin on Wednesday, January 19, 2011 at 1:00 p.m. The purchase of an excellent book and a tape that go along with the program is optional. To register call the Buzzell Senior Center at 978-657-7595.

Free Income Tax Assistance

The Department of Elderly Services is excited this year to be able to provide the "Free Income Tax Assistance" through the IRS,

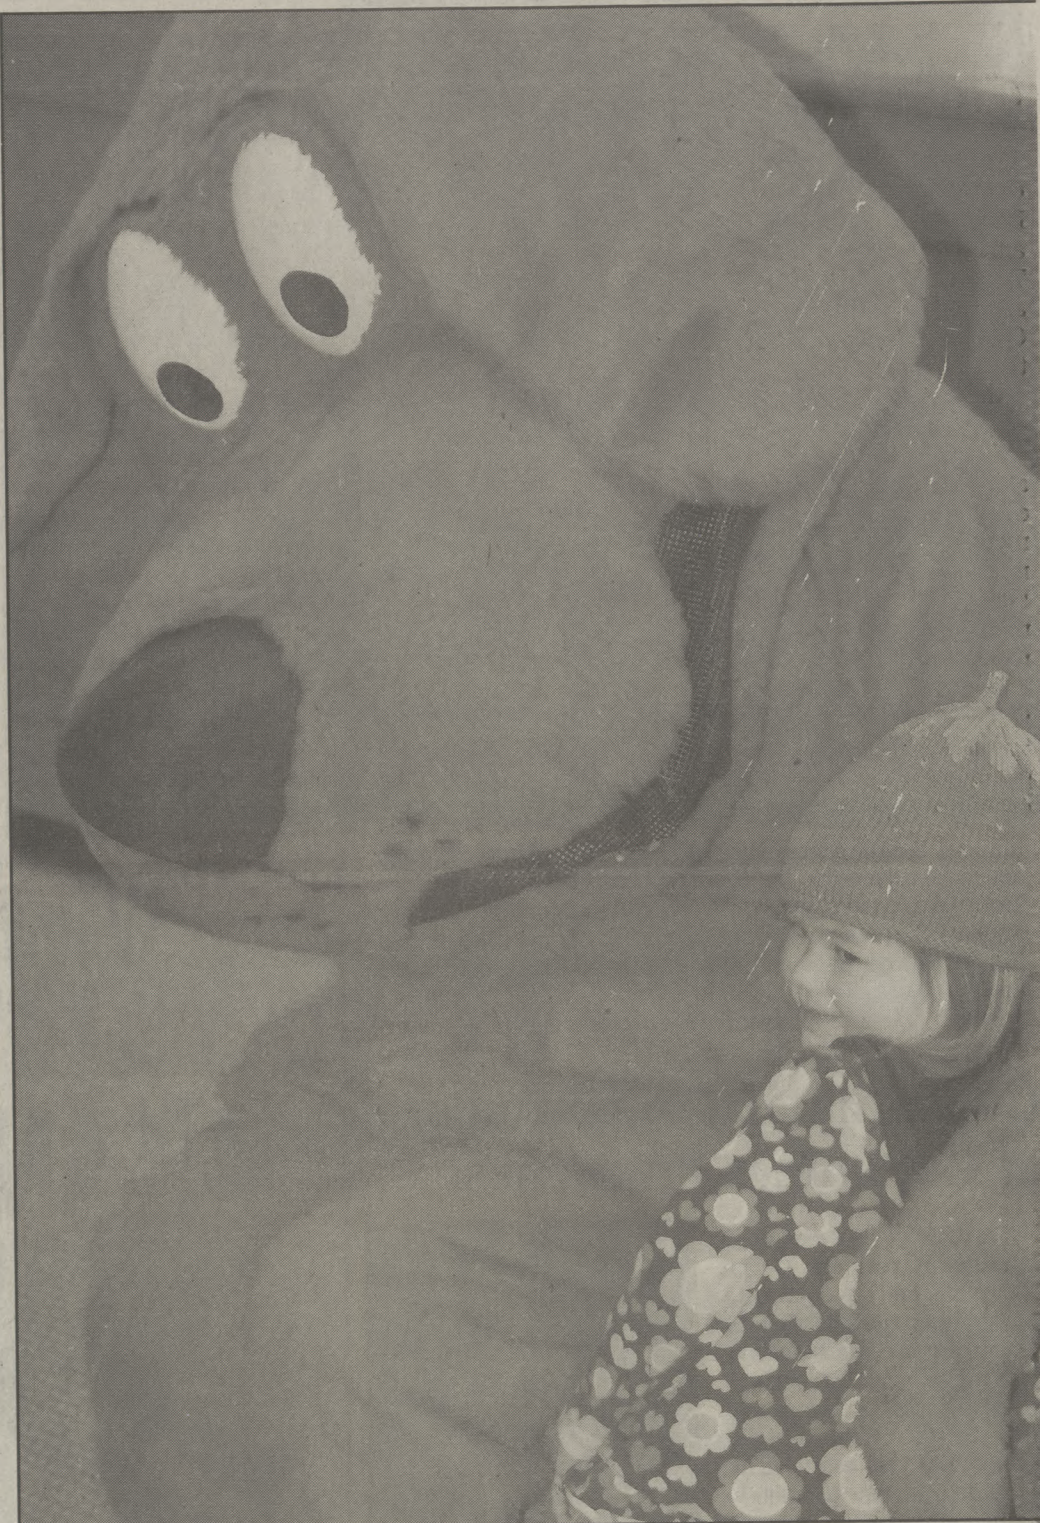

VITA program (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) at the Wilmington Town Hall auditorium for elderly residents. Scheduled appointments should be arranged through the Buzzell Senior Center - 978-657-7595. The program will start Wednesday, February 2, 2011 and will run through Wednesday, April 13, 2011. The appointments will be scheduled between 9:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. All returns are prepared with computer accuracy and with electronic filing for rapid refunds. Clients should bring:

- This year's tax information along with last year's tax returns to their appointments
 - W-2 forms
 - Your social security & pension information
 - Tax forms sent by financial institutions
 - Your property tax & water bills
 - Health Insurance card - 2 cards for married taxpayers
- If anyone is in need of transportation, please make the arrangements at the same time you make your appointments and please feel free to call the department with any questions at 978-657-7595.

Computer Class

Anyone interested in Computer Classes, please sign up at the front desk. Classes will start Tuesday, January 11, 2011 and will be instructed by Tony Marino at the Senior Center. He has a wealth of knowledge and is very active with the Senior Net program - a non-profit organization that provides older adults education for and access to computers and the Internet. He will be starting classes on Tuesday/Thursday mornings from 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. (Limited Space). Please join us on Monday, January 10, 2011 at 9:00 a.m. for an informal discussion over coffee and donuts with Tony to learn more about this exciting class!

Friendly's announces 30th annual 'Cones for Kids' Campaign for Easter Seals

WORCESTER - On January 10, 2011, Friendly Ice Cream Corporation will launch its 30th annual 'Cones for Kids' campaign. The Valentine's Day fundraiser will benefit Easter Seals Massachusetts' summer camp and youth leadership programs for children and young adults with disabilities.

For a $1 donation, Friendly's provides restaurant guests with five Valentine's Day cards, redeemable for free Friendly's Kids Cones plus a $5 off a $25 purchase coupon for parents. The campaign runs January 10 through February 13, 2011.

Funds raised will support Easter Seals Camp Friendly's programs essential to building a sense of independence and accomplishment. Friendly's successful 'Cones for Kids' campaign is an annual tradition where employees across the restaurant chain help change the lives of thousands of children with disabilities through their efforts. The campaign has raised more than $26 million to date -- more than $785,000 in 2010 alone -- to benefit Easter Seals Camp Friendly's program locations across the country.

"Friendly's Cones for Kids event is a fun way for kids throughout Massachusetts to play an active role in the positive development of children faced with physical, mental and developmental challenges," said Kirk Joslin, President and CEO of Easter Seals Massachusetts, who noted that funds raised through the campaign will support Easter Seals Camp Friendly's programs. According to Joslin, camp provides an opportunity for kids with disabilities to be included in regular camp activities like boating and canoeing, swimming, archery, ropes courses, horseback riding, hiking, basketball and fishing.

Friendly Ice Cream Corporation is a vertically integrated restaurant company serving signature sandwiches, entrees and ice cream desserts in a friendly, family environment with system-wide sales of $700 million and distribution through more than 4,000 retail locations. With a 75-year operating history, Friendly's enjoys strong brand recognition and is currently revitalizing its restaurants and introducing new products to grow its customer base. Fire fighter contract

Fire Fighters Local 1730, voted in favor of the agreement December 20, 2010. Selectmen ratified the agreement in executive session prior to Monday night's meeting, and voted in public session.

The three-year contract offers a zero percent increase in year one, which was 2009 to 2010, or FY10. In year two, FY11, firefighters will receive a raise of 2.5 percent and another 2.5 percent will be given in year three.

In other town news, the Massachusetts Municipal Association awarded Wilmington the second place award in the Annual Town Report Contest for 2009. This marks the seventh year that Wilmington has been recognized in this contest.

Town Manager Michael Cairra reminded Selectmen that Wilmington received first place awards in 2003, 2004, and 2006, was a second place recipient in 2005, and third place in 2007 and 2008.

Cairra praised department heads, the Superintendent of Schools, and all staff members that contributed to the development of the report.

"A special commendation is extended to members of the Town Manager's staff who, under the expert guidance of Beverly Dalton, spent untold hours in the production of this report," said Cairra. "I am proud of the great work that went into this superb document which serves to communicate valuable information to our residents through its presentation, layout and inclusion of the Town's attractive municipal calendar."

"They do a great job with the report and the calendar," added Cimaglia.

The award certificates will be presented at the MMA's Annual meeting and Trade Show at the Hynes Convention Center on Saturday, January 22, 2011.

This summer residents can look forward to shopping next to the Town Common for the freshest, locally grown fruits and vegetables at a new farmer's market. Wilmington Selectmen unanimously approved a license for the Wilmington Farmer's Market Association to conduct the market on Town Property.

Beginning July 10, 2011 through September 4, residents can purchase fresh local produce and goods directly from farmers and producers. The market will be held in the parking lot next to the Fourth of July building on Sunday afternoons from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The four-page license includes provisions for sanitary facilities during the market, police details, set-up and breakdown of the site, insurance, and more.

on the design.

A memorandum of understanding, to be signed by the three towns' Boards of Selectmen, would then be assembled for the project, identifying the responsibilities for the design and permitting. Depending on the scope, construction costs could range anywhere from $250,000 to a few million dollars for an entirely new bridge with a major upgrade on the design.

Wilmington wants to replace the bridge with a structure that is basically the same, said Onusseit, rather than a larger, elevated structure.

"When you are dealing with three towns it's a challenge. We recognize that it's an important link for the three communities, but there is not a lot of pressure from Wilmington residents to reopen that bridge," said Onusseit.

Area residents tend to see the bridge as simply a cut-through for non-residents commuting through Wilmington.

A culvert underneath Salem Street, just before the Shay Concrete site traveling toward North Reading, is also slated for repair. The Martin's Brook culvert is undersized. During five FEMA Major Disaster Declarations for Severe Storms and Flooding in Middlesex County in 1996, 1998, 2001, 2006, and 2010 the Martin's Pond area in North Reading has had roughly 650 residents affected by flooding of the Martin's Pond Brook.

A 2004 drainage study by the Army Corp of Engineers determined that the culvert is undersized for the Martin's Brook and is part of the reason for the repeated flooding in that area and tributary area of Brown's Crossing.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) has tentatively awarded a $480,000 flood hazard mitigation grant to North Reading and Wilmington subject to the two towns signing a Memorandum of Understanding to address project authorization, project funding, and culvert maintenance. The estimated project total cost is $750,000. North Reading is offering to cover the local share of the project, $270,000.

Onusseit explained that the culvert, which is many decades old, is poorly designed and has "many significant deficiencies." Flooding at the site also affects Wilmington's Brown's Crossing Water Department Facility, causing over $100,000 in damages in the May 2006 flooding alone.

"The permitting is going to be the big hoop," said Onusseit. The matter has not yet been submitted to the Wilmington Conservation Commission, which will be chiefly concerned with downstream effects from the culvert repair. The engineering firm Green International Associates has conducted hydrologic and hydraulic analyses necessary to move the project forward. The Hathaway Acres neighborhood will likely be the main area impacted by the upgrade of the culvert.

Selectmen made it clear last year, particularly Michael Newhouse, that an improvement in athletic fields in town needs to be prioritized. Last fall the DPW installed irrigation for a soccer field behind the Whitefield School and this spring the town will connect it to water and ready it for the next soccer season.

The DPW will also undertake various smaller drainage projects and upgrading of roads including along Glen Road, Concord Street, Shawheen Avenue, and a section of Woburn Street from Wildwood Street to Lowell Street. The next sidewalk project is slated for Lawrence Street as well.

Town rejected as beneficiary of Estate

That year is up come January 20.

The town was notified in the spring of last year of Richardson's death and her trust.

"Winifred wanted the land cultivated, put to agrarian use, so that children would receive an educational benefit. She was a teacher and regularly brought her students to the house to learn about agriculture," Historic Commission Chairman Carolyn Harris told the Crier. "She wanted children to know that corn does not come from the grocery store."

By the time the town was notified of Richardson's death and bequest, it was too late to remand the matter to the Town Meeting warrant in 2010. Town Meeting must vote to accept the property.

According to Harris, several nonprofit charitable organizations that were also beneficiaries of Richardson have brought pressure to bear upon Mr. Eckberg to settle the estate before January 20, 2011 and not wait for Wilmington's Annual Town Meeting, which takes place on April 30, 2011.

"There is no doubt in my mind that with the plan the Historic Commission developed that it would have passed at Town Meeting. The trust did not want to wait until April 30," said Harris, acknowledging that there are no guarantees at Town Meeting. "I've been at a lot of town meetings and sometimes strange things happen at town meetings. They needed a plan in place to keep these beneficiaries happy."

The Trustee, Eckberg, through his attorney has identified two other prestigious qualifying organizations that would be recipients of the property, Trustees of Reservations and Historic New England. Both, however, would be able to turn around and sell the property. Though the Preservation Restriction Agreement must remain in place, Harris points out that a private citizen could purchase the property to live, thus cutting off the public from accessing the property.

The letter does state that the Trustee "would be happy to entertain the Town's thoughts on any preference between these two organizations or the identification of other organizations that might qualify as appropriate recipients..."

Selectmen voted unanimously to direct the town Manager to send a letter to the trust to consider a new group, the Wilmington Community Farm, led by Amanda Munsie, as an appropriate recipient. The nonprofit organization is already going through the 501(c)(3) process and has been fielding calls from residents interested in joining the effort.

"They have an outstanding mission statement, an educational plan, and all the components that Winifred Richardson wanted for the property," said Harris. "Sometimes, when a door is closed to the town, a window is opened."

UniFirst boss goes undercover online poll, currently running three to one in Croatti's favor.

The CBS reality series "Undercover Boss" follows top-level executives of major national corporations as they slip anonymously into the rank and file of their companies. Each week a different executive leaves the comforts of the corner office for undercover missions to see firsthand the effects their corporate policies have on employees and the products and services they provide.

"We have a deeply rooted family values culture and we promote that all the time," said Tokarz. "It's a bit of a hybrid, to be a big company on the New York Stock Exchange while having the second and third generation Croatti's running the company."

One of the reasons the company decided to participate in the program, according to Tokarz, is that even though the company has been in business for 75 years "if you were to stop anyone in downtown Wilmington, would they know about our company? This was a great way to let people know about us. Undercover Boss has 17 million viewers."

The series approached the company several months ago and wrapped filming just before Christmas. During filming Croatti traveled to two of his company's laundry facilities in Oklahoma City and Sumter, South Carolina as well as a main distribution center in Owensboro, Kentucky. He sewed patches, ironed shirts, sorted rags, and more, all while working up close with employees.

If you missed the airing last Sunday, the episode is available in the On Demand feature of your local cable provider.

Ippolito vs Pote Is Rex Ryan really too much?

IPPOLITO: Jamie, the playoffs get under way this weekend for the Patriots and as seemed inevitable the Jets are the first obstacle on the Pats run to the Super Bowl. Of course the Jets are led by the human windbag Rex Ryan, a man who never knows when to shut his mouth. I honestly don't believe there has ever been a person who has talked more while accomplishing less than this blowhard.

I'm not sure how you feel about this buffoon, but if as he says, Sunday's game comes down to him and Bill Belichick then the game may as well not even be played. Just advance the Pats to the next round and spare him the humiliation.

POTE: Mike, I think you are the buffoon because you can't see what Rex Ryan is doing. Yes he gets carried away sometimes and yes he can't help himself by rambling on and on during press conferences, but he's saying all of this nonsense stuff to take away any focus on his awful quarterback and his very mediocre football team. I for one, enjoy listening to Ryan and his press conferences. I think if he coached here in New England we would love him. People complain that Bill says nothing and now you and every other Patriot fan complains that Rex says too much. So what do you want?

IPPOLITO: I guess what I want is for him to win something before he talks as if he invented coaching. I will agree that he has an awful quarterback and a mediocre football team, but don't you think that by spouting his mouth off all the time that he is putting more pressure on that mediocre football team? Take this week for example. As it is, he is bringing in an inferior opponent who will have to be at their best to have a chance at winning. Does it make any sense to also give the better team bulletin board material?

By the way when Rex wins three Super Bowls, (or even makes it to one) he can act however he wants. In Bill we trust.

POTE: Of course I'm in the 'Bill We Trust' group, and of course I think Rex gives bulletin material, but the point you are missing is he's not putting any pressure on his football team because all he does is talk about himself and saying every week how personal it is to face Manning, Brady, Belichick, etc. Rex Ryan is not going to go up there and say that the Jets have a better quarterback than the Pats, a better running back tandem, better wide receivers and he can't say the Jets have a better defense because first of all none of it is true, and secondly the Patriots scored 45 points against them a month ago. But what he can say is he got out coached last time and wants to prove that it won't happen again. So what's the big deal with that?

IPPOLITO: That would not be a big deal if he stopped by simply saying he got out coached, but when he says last week that "Brady only thinks he prepares as much as Manning," and that "If Belichick slips at all we are going to beat him," he is just giving his opponents more motivation to beat him and his team. Also, this act where he tries to deflect pressure off his team and on to himself is a fairly recent phenomenon. This is the same guy remember, who as recently as the days leading up to the last meeting with the Patriots, said that he had the best team in the league, and also said that the Jets are a "Super Bowl team because of Mark Sanchez." Really, Rex? Really?

POTE: I don't recall hearing that one from Rex, but like I said before, if he coached here, or someone like him coached the Bruins, Celtics, Red Sox or even the Revolution, we would love him because he's entertaining. I love his press conferences - even the one after the 45-3 loss when he was broken into a million pieces and gave the Patriots credit.

People like Rex Ryan is what makes sports so great - whether it's Lou Piniella throwing his hat around the field, Bobby Valentine wearing a moustache in the dugout after being ejected, Terry O'Reilly going after Jim Schonfield, or Bill Cowher making his 'mad face' these coaches are what makes professional sports so great - sports needs these guys and reporters like us need guys like Rex Ryan to make our jobs easier - to sell newspapers and get clicks on websites.

While I'll admit I enjoy his press conferences, I only want to see one more ... Sunday's around 8:00 pm when the Pats walk all over the Jets once again.

WHS Boys Basketball tops Pentucket

Scifo, Wildcats improve to 7-1 with big OT win

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It was one of those crazy games, fun and extremely entertaining. There were a combined 18 three-pointers, there was the three-pointer that came from halfcourt before the buzzer to end the first quarter, and there was the bunny shot that went in and around the rim with one second left which would have ended the game in regulation and given the road team the victory. Then there was the overtime period, where junior Vinny Scifo took over, and all of that added up to a gritty, gutsy, 72-65 overtime win over a very solid Pentucket Sachems team during a Cape Ann League Boys' Basketball game played at WHS on Tuesday night.

Pentucket, coming off a huge non-league win over Haverhill, had a four-point lead with three minutes to go before Scifo and Tim McCarthy banged two huge treys, the latter coming with 1:18 to go to tie the game up at 60-60. After both teams turned the ball over, Pentucket had a golden chance to win the game as Will Angelini posted up inside with one second left, but his shot went around the rim and out, sending the game into the four minute overtime frame.

That's when Scifo polished off his very impressive second half performance scoring seven of his 19 points and 23 in all, on a drive-and-foul for a three-point play, a finger roll and a 15-footer to make it a seven-point game with 1:12 to go to ice the game, giving Wilmington its seventh straight victory after starting out with a loss last month.

"This was a great game," said Wildcat coach Joe Maiella. "Pentucket is so well coached. They do everything right defensively. They also have two very good offensive players with (Corey) McNamara and the big kid (Will Angelini) who was hurt last year and he's only a junior and he gave us a lot of problems inside. I told the kids this would be a real tough game. Pentucket had a huge win against Haverhill who has a Division 1 (college) scholarship player.

They gave us a lot of problems with man-to-man pressure. We worked a lot on that the last few days because Newburyport gave us problems with that and we haven't seen that all season long. We can't get the the pressure simulated for a game in practice and that's the goal with our second and third group is to try to get that. But it's tough and tonight Pentucket played very tough defensively and he's just an unbelievable coach over there, Leo Parent."

Scifo and McNamara both led their teams with 23 points each. Scifo scored just four in the first half before erupting in the second half including scoring seven straight points, before he drained a huge three-pointer with 2:35 to go in the fourth quarter cutting the deficit to one.

"The thing with Vinny is he has to be patient," said Maiella of his all-conference guard. "He's got to let the game come to him and see what the defense gives you. He can shoot the three and he can take it to the rim."

While Scifo really heated up in the second half, McNamara had the hot shooting hand in the first half. After being blanked in the first quarter, he scored 14 straight points in the second quarter during a 2:49 stretch including four of his six three-pointers of the game. Wilmington had built a 10-point lead after Cole Peffer's three-pointer 35 seconds into the second quarter. Then McNamara took over and single handedly gave the Sachems a short lead before Wilmington responded with a 7-0 run to close out the half with a 28-25 edge.

Wilmington led the entire third quarter until Serge Smaila's finger roll with six seconds left tied the game up at 44, and after the teams exchanged leads, Pentucket led from the 6:13 mark until McCarthy drained the three-pointer on a nice pass from Nick Godzyk which eventually sent the game in overtime. That's when Wilmington outscored Pentucket 12-5 behind seven points from Scifo, a big three-pointer from Peffer and single freebie shots from McCarthy and Kyle Albanese.

"We were down by four with (4:35 to go) and Cole (Peffer) hit a big three-pointer and then Vinny started to hit some big shots," said Maiella. "These are the games when you look back a month from now where you say this one helped us go a long way, and right now 7-1 is a lot better than 6-2."

Again Wilmington had four players in double figures with Scifo (23), McCarthy (13), Godzyk (13) and Peffer with 13 off the bench, while Chris Frissore had two impressive steals and lay-ups during a 12 second stretch in the first quarter as part of his night.

"We're running the dribble-drive motion offense and we ran only one set play at the beginning of overtime," said Maiella. "We're trying to run the same offense that (Kentucky head coach) John Calipari is running. We're trying to take advantage of our guards - we have guys who can shoot the three and get to the rim."

Lost in all of the hoopla of the overtime win and three-pointers is the incredible production and most of all improvement from two guys named Kyle Albanese and Derek O'Dea coming from the center position. Albanese starts, and on Tuesday he finished with three points and nine rebounds and O'Dea spells him, and he finished this game with a huge performance on the boards, also finishing with nine to go along with his bucket. Thus the two combined for five points and 18 rebounds.

"Yes (we are getting great production from the two of them) and it's been unbelievable," said Maiella. "Derek O'Dea is a kid who at the end of last year really didn't get as much playing time, but I tell you what he has stepped it up. He's giving us all kinds of good minutes. Then that offensive rebound by Kyle in overtime was tremendous. Those two guys are getting a combined 15 rebounds a night from the five position which is exactly what we want and need to get."

On Friday night, Wilmington defeated a pretty tough Newburyport Clippers team on the road by a 66-58 score. McCarthy led the way for the Wildcats with a game high 21 points including four treys. Godzyk was the second Wildcat player in double figures with 13 points.

Wilmington has just one game this week, another tough Friday night road game against Rockport, one of the better small school teams from the Cape Ann League.

Tracks teams defeated by Masco

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School Boys Indoor Track-and-Field team dropped two meets recently putting the team's record to 1-4. Last Wednesday the Wildcats were defeated by Masconomet, 56-30, and before that came a 67-19 loss to Newburyport.

"We have faced the toughest teams in the league so far and we are hoping to finish strong," said first year head coach Mike Kinney.

While the team dropped two league meets, this past weekend several underclassmen did quite well in the Massachusetts State Track Coaches Association's Freshmen and Sophomore Meet held at the Reggie Lewis Center.

"The underclassmen showed great promise for the future, as nearly ever athlete achieved a personal best," said Kinney.

Among the highlights in that meet was the 4x400 team's fourth place finish behind the efforts of Steve Halas, Andrew Sears, Erik Alatalo and Pat Barry, who then placed fifth in the high jump. The relay team finished with a combined time of 3:52.46, while Barry cleared 5-4. Two other members of the team placed in the top ten including Halas with an 8th place finish in the mile (4:52.78) and Eli Jennings, a freshman, who was also 8th in the shot put throwing 37-05.25.

In the team's dual meet loss to Masconomet, Wilmington had three first place finishes including Marc Shibilia in the 300 (35.8), Zach Sears in the two mile (10:32) and Nate Downs in both the high jump (5-9) and the 600 (1:21.6). Barry, Halas and Jennings finished in second place in the hurdles, mile and shot put respectively and rounding out the scoring with a third place in the 1,000 was DJ Livermore, who came across at 2:59.4.

In the loss to Newburyport, Downs again was a double winner taking the 600 (1:33.8) and high jump (5-5), while Sears also won the two mile coming in at 10:41 as the duo combined for all but four of the team's points. Rounding out the scoring with one point each with third places includes Anthony DeSimone in the hurdles (9.5), John Weber in the 600 (1:41.1), Ryan O'Rourke in the shot put (39-2) and Evan Copeland in the high jump (5-3).

WHS Girls Track

The Wildcats fell to 2-4 on the season with a 55-31 defeat to Masconomet last Wednesday night.

Only three Wilmington members finished in first place as Catrina Fryer won the 50-yard dash at 6:36, Nikki Sirignano captured the two mile coming in at 12:54 and Nikki Lunt won the shot put with a state qualifying throw of 30-2.

Taking second places included Savannah Hubbard in the hurdles (8.38), Alex Bischoff in the 300 with a league qualifying time of 42.1, Rachel Alatalo in the 600 (1:42) Kelly Hartsough in the 1,000 (3:28) and Sydnee Russo in the mile at 6:01. Rounding out the scoring with third places include Hannah Kelly in the 600 (1:44), Kate Richardson in the 1,000 (3:38) and Melanie Folk in the shot put (25-5).

"The girls, even in defeat continue to show real desire to compete," said head coach Tom Bradley. "There are no complaints when the girls are up front battling all the way through and they did."

Wilmington High junior forward Maggie Brown had 24 points and 10 rebounds during Monday night's home loss to Chelmsford.

Girls split two games on the court

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Last year at this time, the Wilmington High School Girls Basketball team was off to a very rocky 1-6 start. After Monday's non-league loss to Chelmsford put the team at 3-4, head coach Jay Keane, who is battling a horrible cold, said "last year we were 1-6 and now we're 3-4 after seven games, so we'll take it".

And while he'll take the difference of the two wins through the seven game mark of the season, he would like to see his team execute better on both ends of the floor especially after the 53-42 home non-league loss to Chelmsford on Monday night.

"We're playing pretty good defense, but (against Chelmsford) they were setting up double and triple screens for Jenn Janiak (their best player) and she was converting them. And for us it seemed like we were getting good opportunities to score but we weren't finishing. We were taking the ball inside because Chelmsford was in foul trouble, and sometimes we got a call and went to the free throw line, and other times when we didn't get the call, it seemed like we missed a shot, Chelmsford got the ball and scored a basket on transition."

Keane added that Chelmsford put in a very athletic and quicker line-up and some of those match-ups slighted the Lions. Yet Wilmington hung around, going 18-for-26 from the free throw line.

"The problem was we only scored three field goals in the second half so we just need to do a better job of finishing on our opportunities because we had a lot of them," said Keane.

Junior Maggie Brown had a monster game for the Wildcats finishing with 24 points and 10 rebounds. She nailed 12 free throws as part of her 24-point night. Janiak, on the other hand, led Chelmsford with 19 points including four 3-pointers.

On Friday night, Wilmington came away with a hard earned 50-43 home victory over Newburyport. Wilmington led by three at halftime and then trailed by one after the third quarter before a couple of sophomores came through.

"Both Cailin (O'Flaherty) and Alex (Derian) had real nice fourth quarters," said Keane. "Cailin scored seven of her season high 12 points in the fourth quarter and Alex had two big three-pointers as part of her eight point night. They both played very well in the fourth and helped us get that win."

O'Flaherty led the team with 12 points, all off the bench, while Amanda Keane finished with 9 and both Maggie Brown and Derian had eight as the four players combined for 37 of the team's 50 points.

"Newburyport has a new coach and they have been playing very well, playing some tough teams so I thought this was a real good league win for us," said Keane.

Wilmington is 3-4 overall but 3-0 in the league with wins over Triton, Amesbury and Newburyport, but falling in all four non-league games to North Andover, Masconomet, Lexington and Chelmsford. The Wildcats return home for two games this week with Rockport on Friday night, and then another non-league team, Bishop Fenwick coming to town on Tuesday night. Both games begin at 7:00 pm.

Boys Hockey team continues to roll

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

After losing 16 players from its 21 win season from a year ago, truthfully no one knew what to expect out of this year's Wilmington High School Boys Hockey team. After the past ten days where the team picked up three more wins, six more points and extended the program's Cape Ann League unbeaten streak to 22 games, one thing is certain that this year's team has certainly kept the long winning tradition of WHS Hockey alive.

This past Wednesday, the Wildcats knocked off a very good Lynnfield team, 3-0, before dumping Amesbury, 5-1, in a penalty filled, sloppy game played at Veterans Memorial Arena in Newburyport. The two wins puts Wilmington at 6-1-1 overall and 6-0-0 against league competition.

"We are real pleased with how things have gone so far," said head coach Steve Scanlon. "With the amount of kids who graduated from last year's team, we are very pleased. The kids have worked very hard and we were a little bit inconsistent early on but that's coming. I think we have put together some much better stretches, and against Lynnfield we were real solid throughout the entire game."

The Lynnfield victory was key because the Pioneers are led by arguably the league's best goalie Craig Cataldo, a huge specimen who takes up most of the net and is playing in his fifth year with the varsity team. He's a very good goalie, but Wilmington was able to get three by him, first with senior Andy Owens netting his first goal of the season in the second period, before Brendan McDonough and Luke Foley scored goals in the third period to put the game away. For Foley it was his first varsity goal.

"Foley does a lot of work on that second line and he's just a real good grinder to have with (McDonough and Cody McGowan)," said Scanlon.

That second line of all freshmen -- McDonough, McGowan and Foley -- have combined for 28 points through eight games, as McDonough and Cam Owens,

Perry takes second to highlight weekend wrestling tournament

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School wrestling team continues to progress and continues to have individuals come home with medals. This past week the Wildcats defeated Marblehead/Swampscott 39-28 to improve to 4-2 in the dual meet season, while the team also finished in a tie for 12th place out of 20 teams from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maine during the very difficult Chelmsford Tournament held on Saturday. During that meet, Wilmington only registered 10 of 14 wrestlers, still they came away with a respectable 12th place finish led by James Perry, who finished second in the 160-pound division.

"We had a good day at the Chelmsford Tournament," said head coach Mike Pimental. "We tied for 12th place and we only entered 10 of 14 wrestlers. We are very happy with the way everyone wrestled."

Shawsheen Tech, one of the premier teams in not only Division 1 but in the entire state, won the tournament as they had ten wrestlers place in the top six of their weight classes as part of its 218.5 point performance. Chelmsford finished second, followed by Bishop Hendricken of Rhode Island.

Wilmington had two place finishers, Perry taking second and Shawn Adams taking fifth at 140 pounds. Perry won his first three matches by pin over Mike Dudek of Leominster, Derek Coffey of Billerica and Tony Lonzack of Warwick, Rhode Island, before defeating Ian Weigle of Kennebunk, Maine putting him into the championship match. There he was defeated by Shawsheen Tech's Jesse Dillon by a close 3-2 score.

"James had outstanding tournament," said Pimental. "He wrestled very, very tough this weekend. In the semi-finals he won by major decision over a wrestler from Kennebunkport Maine who was fourth in the section. James has worked so hard in the off-season and deserves the best season possible. We are looking forward to the state tournament this year, because James is really going

Stuart earns first collegiate win and shut out in the net

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

Tewksbury's Kerri Stuart made sure her first start at the collegiate level in women's ice hockey was one to remember. The freshman goalie at Amherst College made 15 saves to help lead the Lord Jeffs to a 5-0 shutout victory over Connecticut College on Sunday afternoon.

Stuart played four years on the boys' hockey team at Tewksbury High School before heading out west to Amherst. She also played soccer and lacrosse at TMHS.

The Lord Jeffs sport a record of 6-3-2 so far this season, and are 5-0-1 in conference. They are home this weekend to take on Middlebury.

Tewksbury's Evan White picked up right where he left off last season as the sophomore sprinter at UMass Lowell was a part of two winning relay teams at the Dartmouth Relays over the weekend.

The former Tewksbury High standout ran the third leg of the 4x400 meter relay, and clocked in an impressive time of 49.6, which was tied for the best on the team. He followed that up by running the fastest leg on the winning 4x200 meter relay team (21.1).

Last year White set a school record in the 200 meters as a freshman and was named an All-American.

Former Tewksbury High assistant cross country coach Nate Jenkins also competed at the Relays and won the 3,000 meters in 8:23.19. The River Hawks return to action next Saturday at the Tufts Jumbo Invitational.

Mike Willey, a junior wrestler at Plymouth State University, captured the individual title in the 157 pound weight class at the Scott Viera Invitational in Rhode Island on Saturday.

Willey, a Tewksbury native, went 4-0 in the tournament to claim his title. He is now 14-1 on the season and is ranked No. 1 in New England. The Panthers placed third overall out of nine teams at the Invitational.

Plymouth State will travel to Norwich University this Saturday for a tri-meet with the Cadets and MIT.

Ashley Vitale helped the Endicott women's basketball team kick off conference play on the right foot as she scored 17 points to lead the Gulls to a 65-41 win over Eastern Nazarene on Saturday.

Vitale, a senior captain from Wilmington, was 8-for-12 from the field and 1-for-2 from the line in the victory, the first for the Gulls in The Commonwealth Coast Conference. She also had four rebounds to go with the 17 points.

Vitale is averaging 15.3 points and 7.4 rebounds this season. The Gulls are at home this Saturday as they take on Western New England College.

Tewksbury's John Cahalane scored his seventh goal of the year to help lead the Worcester State men's hockey team to a 6-3 victory over Becker College on Thursday. Cahalane, a junior forward, scored with 1:26 left in the second period. The win improved the Lancers record to 6-2-3.

Worcester State is back in action this Thursday when they play host to Plymouth State.

Brittany Murphy was another Tewksbury native who helped lead a college hockey team to victory last week as she scored her fifth goal of the year to lead the UConn Huskies to a 6-2 win over Robert Morris on Sunday.

Murphy, a senior forward, opened the first period with a goal at the 9:48 mark. The Huskies improved to 8-13-1 with the win and continue a crucial Hockey East homestand this weekend when they play host to Vermont.

Wilmington's Amy Fahey scored seven points and grabbed three rebounds for the Plymouth State women's basketball team in a tough 50-48 loss to Salve Regina University last Tuesday. Fahey, a freshman, has seen action in all 12 of her team's games this season. The Falcons will travel to Bridgewater State this Saturday to continue conference play.

White also ran a 49.6-second leg on UMass Lowell's 4X400 meter relay team, which came in first in 3:20.08. UMass Lowell returns to action Saturday at the Tufts Jumbo Invitational.

White named Athlete of the Week

Behind a host of solid performances, five members of the UMass Lowell women's and men's track and field teams received weekly honors from the Northeast-10 Conference Tuesday.

Sophomore Evan White (Tewksbury, Mass.) was named the Men's Track Athlete of the Week and Keith Lewis (Nashua, N.H.) and Elisabeth Monty (Charlton, Mass.) the freshmen athletes of the week.

The honors follow UMass Lowell's collective effort at the Dartmouth Relays at which the River Hawk men placed third behind Northeastern and Dartmouth; while the women placed fourth behind Northeastern, Dartmouth and Boston College.

White led the UMass Lowell 4X200 and 4X400 meter relay teams to first place, the former to a school and meet record time of 1:27.71. White ran a 21.1-second split, which bested the previous school record of 1:29.63 (set in 2001) and the meet record of 1:27.90 (set by the University of Illinois in 2004).

White also ran a 49.6-second leg on UMass Lowell's 4X400 meter relay team, which came in first in 3:20.08. UMass Lowell returns to action Saturday at the Tufts Jumbo Invitational.

Lady Rams come back strong against Lynn Tech

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech girls basketball team suffered their first loss of the season this past week, a 43-36 setback to non-league rival Ursuline Academy last Wednesday night on the road, but they bounced back in fine fashion last Friday night with an impressive 48-22 win over CAC Upper Division rival Lynn Tech.

The 1-1 week leaves the Lady Rams with a 6-1 overall record while they sit atop the CAC Upper with a perfect 3-0 mark in the league.

Shawsheen coach Dick Barriss is happy with the way his team has started the season, but he warns that his team should not be overconfident as they head into the final two thirds of the season.

"I am really happy with the way the team is playing," Barriss said. "We are playing great offense and a big reason for that is the way we are playing great defense, but at the same time we still don't know how good we are. The league is not as balanced as it has been in years past"

With that knowledge, Barriss tried a little something different against Lynn Tech, electing to sit some of his starters at the start of the game with the hope of bringing them in midway through the first quarter to give the Lady Rams a boost.

Starters Jess Houghton and Allyson Trayah did not start the game.

The plan did not work out the way Barriss had hoped. The players who did start played too well to allow him to execute his plan.

"We did not start Jessica and Allyson was actually injured," Barriss said. "The plan was to bring the starters in at about the four minute mark, but at the four minute mark we were up 16-0 so I could not really put our best team in at that point."

Sophomore Ari Medeiros of Tewksbury led the way for the Lady Rams with nine points, but she was hardly alone as the well balanced Shawsheen attack also got eight points from forward Jamie Mahoney along with seven each from Houghton and sophomore center Stephanie Champoux. Junior center Charlotte Ardini added six points, while junior guard Kimberly Barriss helped get the offense going with seven assists for the Lady Rams who led 32-13 at halftime.

That balanced scoring attack is exactly what Barriss wants to see from his team.

"We don't really want to have one 20 point scorer because then we would come to rely on that," Barriss said. "I would rather have a bunch of kids with six, seven or eight points. That makes us that much harder to defend."

One of the things that has helped the Lady Rams quite a bit this season has been the performance of their two centers where Champoux and Julie Russell have provided about 16 points per game, with Champoux averaging about ten and Russell averaging about six.

"I told the two of them that I would have to go back to around 2004 when I had Melanie Strazzere to remember when I was getting 16 points a game from my center position," Barriss said. "I don't care who is getting them, but it they are combining for that many points a game we will be in very good shape."

The Lady Rams are obviously rolling right now, and with a big CAC Upper Division game looming next Tuesday against Whittier they are in position to take complete control of the league with a victory over the Tigers.

Barriss does not know how his team will do in that game, but one thing he knows for sure is that he will get a maximum effort from his team as he has gotten all year."

"I am very happy with where we are at this point and the kids have earned it," Barriss said. "They have worked very hard to get where they have gotten. They deserve everything they have gotten."

Boys Basketball

The Shawsheen boys basketball team also enjoyed a big victory this week, downing CAC Lower Division rival Northeast Metro Tech in a crossover battle by a score of 54-38. The win improved the Rams record on the season to 3-7.

"This was a big win for us," Shawsheen coach Bob Hodnett said. "It was probably our best game of the year. This is a team that had beaten us last year by about eight points so for us to get a win tonight just shows that we are improving as a team. We are getting better and better."

One of the big reasons the Rams are getting better is that they are starting to get some big contributions from several of their players who were part of the football team's Super Bowl run, forcing them to get a bit of a late start on practices and take a little while to get their "basketball legs" under them.

That was on full display on Tuesday night when tow ex gridiron stars, senior center Derek Bent and junior forward Steve Reynolds of Wilmington led the Rams to victory. Bent led all scorers with 15 points and added seven rebounds while Reynolds added 13 points to go along with 14 rebounds.

Bent's improved play has been a big key for the Rams as of late.

"We usually try to go to him right away if the other team has him covered one on one. He is one of the best big men in the league," Hodnett said. "Once he gets a couple of buckets while being covered one on one they are usually forced to double him which opens up some of our other guys."

And Reynolds efforts as of late have also been huge for the Rams. He may be a small forward, but he has come up very big for the Rams, as evidenced by his 14 rebounds against some much larger competition.

"He is not the biggest kid we have, but he works hard and picks up a lot of weak side rebounds," Hodnett said.

Guy DePlacido added ten points for the Rams, who got an all around team effort to lead them to their third victory of the season.

"I am very happy with the way we played," Hodnett said. "We played great defense. They had one kid who scored 20 points, but other than that we really held them. We rebounded well and we knocked down some shots when we had to."

Wrestling

The Shawsheen Tech wrestling team captured their first ever Chelmsford Invitational Tournament on Saturday afternoon at Chelmsford High, placing 10 wrestlers in the top six in their weight classes and capturing championships in four different weight classes.

Jesse Dillon (160 pounds), Ryan Cassidy (171), Anthony Pimentel (215) and Stephen Higgins (285) each won individual titles for the Rams.

The Rams totaled 218.5 points to easily out distance second place Chelmsford who finished with 161 points and third place Bishop Hendricken of Rhode Island who finished at 160.

Dillon defeated Wilmington's James Perry in the finals at 160 by a score of 3-2, while Cassidy captured his title with a win in the finals over Winnacunet New Hampshire's Matt Sullivan and Pimentel downed Ryan Finn of Kennebunk, Maine with a pin at 1:39.

Higgins, of Tewksbury, won his finals match with a pin at 3:24 over Chelmsford's Lou Ferrer.

Shawsheen sophomore Devonn Pratt earned a second place finish at 119 pounds, falling by a score of 6-3 in the finals to Warwick, Rhode Island's Anthony Myers. Finishing third at their weight for the Rams were Jonathan Stearns (112) and Anthony Finn (135), while Jon Baker of Wilmington was fourth at 140, and Lenny Houghton was fifth at 189. Dillon Kenney finished sixth at 103.

Girls Hockey

The Shawsheen Tech Lady Rams hockey team suffered another couple of losses this past week, falling short to strong Gardner and Masconomet teams.

Last Thursday, the Rams came up on the short end of an 8-0 game against Gardner on the road. Although they put forth a strong effort, Coach Bob Roach said, "I thought we were going to be an even match up, [but] Gardner was a lot stronger than we thought".

Last Saturday at home, the Rams went up against Masco in hopes to come out with better results than those that came a few days before. Down 4-0 early in the game, that didn't look promising. But refusing to be shut out, the Rams came back with an exciting three goals later in the game but fell 4-3.

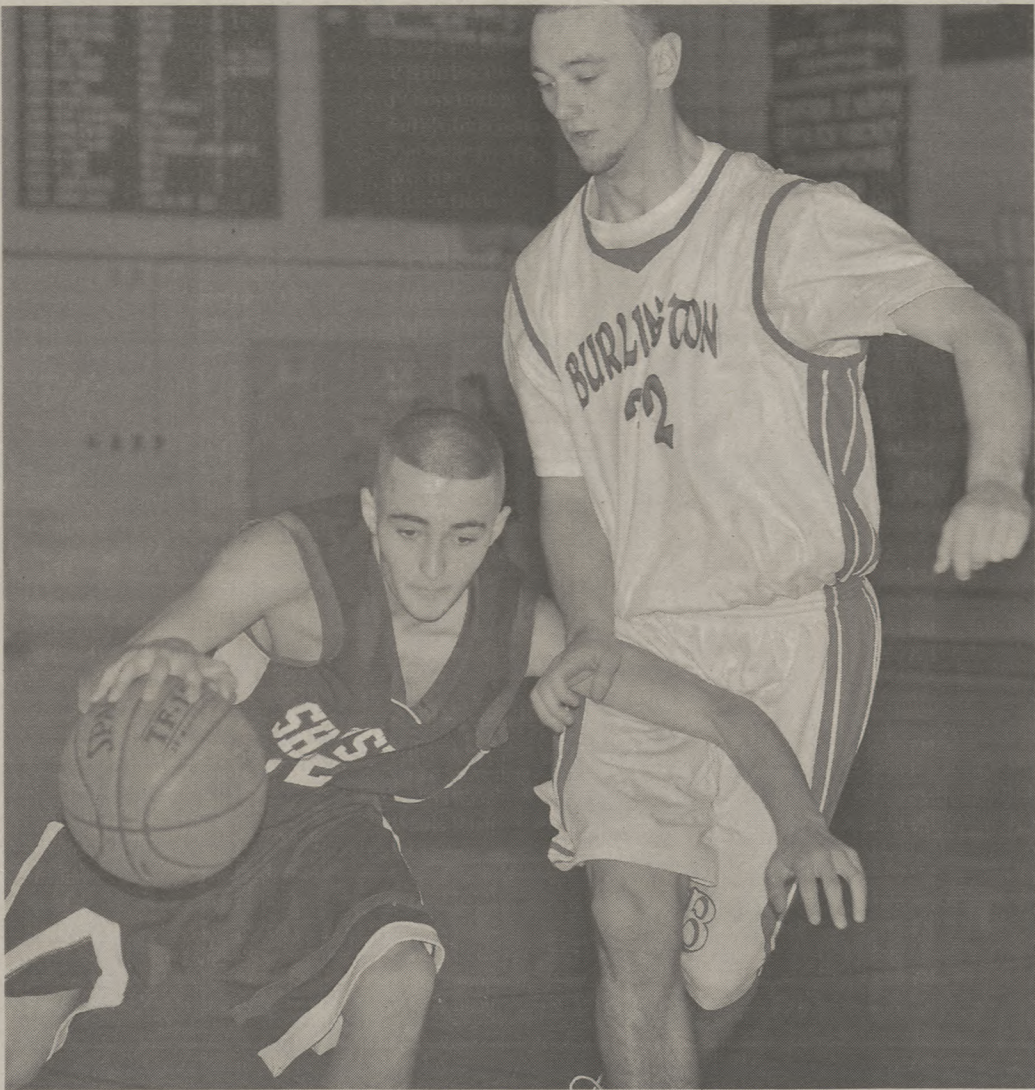

"We basically out played them in the second and third periods, we just ran out of time," Roach said.

Freshman forward Kennedy Harper scored two goals to lead the Rams' comeback, and added an assist on the third. Senior forward Nicole Moore netted the other goal for Shawsheen.

"In the Masco game, everybody played really well, it was a real good team effort," Roach said.

The Rams are looking to pull out two wins as they take on Winthrop/Lynn English this Thursday, Everett on Saturday before finishing the busy week of play off with a 2:00 pm match-up Monday at the Janas Arena in Lowell against Wilmington.

Lauren Spencer also contributed to this report.

Shawsheen Athletic program wins Markum Award again

At this rate, it's going to be easier to start listing the years that Shawsheen Valley Technical High School hasn't won the Markham Award.

Last week, Boston Globe announced its annual awards for the best school-wide winning percentage throughout the entire school year for each division. The award for technical and vocational high schools is called the Markham Award and for the fourth straight year, the plaque was sent to Billerica for Shawsheen's performance during the 2009-2010 school year.

"That's four in a row and I think we've won seven of the last eight," said Shawsheen Tech Athletic Director and head football coach Al Costabile. "We're never tired of winning it, believe me."

There is likely, however, a large portion of the state that is tired of seeing the Rams at the top of the Markham Award's heap. While Costabile is pleased with his varsity coaches and athletes, the Ram AD is quick to point out that the success starts at the sub-varsity levels, with Shawsheen Tech's successful freshman and junior varsity programs.

"[The awards] are really beginning to show not only the success of our varsity programs, but the success of our sub-varsity programs as well," he said. "You have to take that into account when you go on runs like this."

Costabile has seen an example of this first hand with his football team. This year, while his varsity team was winning the school's first-ever Div. 4 state championship, Shawsheen's JV and freshmen teams both finished undefeated.

The soccer and basketball programs have also enjoyed success at the sub-varsity level.

"It's going on in all of our sports," Costabile said. "This is really a testament to the entire school. You need a lot of cooperation from the administration and other faculty members that understand the importance of athletics. It's very special."

"This is the kind of thing that happens when you tell students they are winners, treat them as such, and provide them excellent coaches led by the likes of [athletic director] Al Costabile," said Shawsheen Superintendent/Director Charles Lyons. "Establishing and continuing successful programs is part of our fabric and our tradition. Great teachers, committed students and dedication produces excellent results."

And for anyone that is, in fact, tired of seeing the Markham Award resting in Shawsheen Tech's hands, the news isn't getting any better in 2010-2011. Along with the football team's championship, the school won league titles in girls soccer, cross country and volleyball this fall with the girls soccer team finishing the season with an undefeated record.

"We're off to a great start this year," said Costabile. "And we have a couple of very successful winter programs coming off of what might be the best fall season in school history. We're going to be tough to beat."

Youth Hockey round-up

Mite 3's

On January 9th, the Wilmington Mite 3 youth hockey team traveled to Arlington to face off against the Spy Ponders in their first game of the season. Wilmington started the game with a flurry of shots against the Arlington goaltender as James Kourkoutas, Peter Kourkoutas and Liam Crowley attacked the goaltender from all angles, relentless, keeping the puck in the offensive zone for over a minute of continued pressure. Wilmington's defensemen, Owen White and Joey Cornish were all over the blueline, keeping all clearing attempts in the Arlington zone. Unfortunately, Wilmington could not get one past the Spy Pond goaltender. The game continued its ferocious pace as Gina Bertolami, Gannon Ricci and Evan Munro moved the puck up the middle and into the Arlington's zone for more shots. Conor Peterson, Cam Humphrey and Jack Farrell played great two way hockey, while Colin Sainato, Derek Gallucci, Drew Gallucci and Aydan Churchill kept the puck away from Wilmington goaltender Jimmy McCarron. Jim McCarron faced heavy pressure throughout the first, stopping quality shot after shot, keeping the game at a scoreless tie by the end of the first period.

Early in the second, Arlington turned up the pressure and had multiple opportunities on net, only to be stopped by Jimmy McCarron and a goal line stop by a sliding defenseman, Owen White. Owen White continued his great defensive effort back checking later in the second and stopping a potential goal by Arlington. Joe Cornish found himself in the middle of a 4-1 breakout, stopping the Spy Ponders from a potential 4-0 breakout on a great play at the blueline. It was a great effort by Wilmington, but Arlington got going late in the second and third periods as they scored five unanswered

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Association Mite 2 team returned to action on Sunday afternoon, meeting Melrose at the Malden Valley Forum. Alex Fitzler played goal for the Wildcats, fronted by defensemen Aidan Elkins, Anthony Bowker, Matt Ardito, Harry Serounian, and Joseph Hartzell. The starting forward line of C.J. Petrie, Matt Vinal, and Brendan Ardito came together almost immediately, as Petrie scored in the first minute of play. Melrose came back to tie the game at one all, but late in the first period, that first line combination struck again. This time it Matt Vinal in front of the net to deflect a pass from Petrie and give the Wildcats a 2-1 lead.

Melrose came out quickly in the second period, and scored shorthanded to tie the score at 2-2. Melrose then seized the lead near the midpoint of the contest with hard work in front of the Wilmington goal. At the other end of the ice, forwards Maura Fiorenza, Nathan Alberti, and Robbie Courtney kept the offense going, as did the third line of David Bazile, Max Churchill, and A.J. Lavigne. It was that starting trio that did it again though, tying the score at 3-3 late in the second. This time Brendan Ardito got the goal, assists going to Petrie and Vinal.

As in the second, Melrose came storming out on offense to begin the third period. This time they didn't look back and quickly ran the score to a 7-3 lead. Unfortunately for Wilmington, time would run out before the blue and white could recover from the sudden outburst of scoring from Melrose. C.J. Petrie scored his second of the game with just under five minutes remaining, but this day was not for the Wildcats.

team got back to work this weekend facing off against the Reading Rockets. The scoring began with Kyle Collins breaking free from the Reading defenders and releasing a blistering wrist shot that found the back of the net. The lead was short lived as Reading came back with three quick goals to end the 1st period. But the score did not deter this team, they started the second period with determination and full of confidence.

The scoring started by the defensive pair of Matt Miller and Felicia Zuccola, they did some fine work at the point, and were rewarded with assists, by keeping the puck in the attacking zone and firing a long shot at the net, where the rebound found Nolan Vigeant's stick and he put it home, to cut Readings lead to one. With the tenacious work from the other defensive pair of Matt Pendenza and Justin Crowley breaking up a play in the defensive zone, Crowley dumped the puck in deep, to Chris Bernazani who fed Garrett Alberti, playing center, snapped a shot home to tie the game at 3-3.

Not to be outdone, Reading came back with a quick strike to take the lead again. The Wildcats were not done fighting, with some very pretty "tic-tac-toe" passing between Kyle Collins and Anthony Cuzzo, they got the puck to Nolan Vigeant who scored his second of the day to tie the score at 4-4. The Rockets would put two more past goaltender Sam Cedrone, who was doing an outstanding job in the net with some very acrobatic split saves that even impressed the referees!

The Wildcats still fought valiantly, in the third, Zach Kincaid, Cameron Banks, Riley Fitzgerald and Will Lawson peppered the Reading goaltender, who flashed his glove to make some tremendous saves, and was able to keep the Wildcats from scoring. The final score was 6-4 in favor of Reading.

On Sunday morning the team traveled to the Ice Palace in Burlington. Burlington came out strong catching the Cats off guard and getting two quick goals ten seconds apart. The team showed great poise by settling down and getting back to basics.

The Cats answered the call at the beginning of the second period by a wonderful end to end rush by Justin Crowley who roofed a strong wrist shot that blinded the Burlington goaltender. By midway through the game there was a lot of penalties called on both teams which disrupted the flow of the game. Forward lines of Zach Kincaid, Christopher Bernazani, and Riley Fitzgerald displayed some fine passing but could not muster many shots. Kyle Collins, Nolan Vigeant, Anthony Cuzzo and Will Lawson were skating hard and pushing back the Burlington attack. They took many shots but the rebounds would be just out of reach of the Wildcats sticks.

The defensive pairing of Felicia Zuccola and Garrett Alberti and Matt Pendenza with Cameron Banks, who pulled double duty by starting out as a winger and was rotated back to defense, did a fine job of clearing any rebounds that Sam Cedrone would let up. Burlington ended up getting two more goals, and handed the Wildcats their second loss by the score of 4-1.

to surprise some people and is very capable of being top two at our divisional state tournament."

Adams finished fifth and went 4-2 through the tournament. He first knocked off Caleb Hoyt of Deering, Rhode Island with a pin coming at 1:37. He then was edged out by Billerica's Ian Vincent 4-3. From the consolation round bracket, Adams came back strong to defeat both Mico Pateleak of St. John's and Dan Cofone of Bishop Hendricken by pins at the 1:23 and 2:41 marks of each match. After losing to Shawsheen's John Baker, 6-2, Adams finished fifth with a victory over Rob Quimby of Noble, Maine, 7-1.

Both Cody Halliday (135) and Mike Amentola (289) came away with two wins each, while, Dan Lee (112), Tyler Strem (119), Jim Kendall (145) and Jeff Goosens (152) all had one win each. Gavin Carta, John Ho and James Carlin also put in strong efforts but fell short losing two matches each.

In the team's dual meet win over Marblehead/Swampscott, picking up wins through pins include Strem, Ho, Goosens and Perry, while, Adams won a major decision, and Halliday and Kendall won by forfeits.

This Saturday, Wilmington will travel to Vermont to participate in the annual Mount Anthony Union tournament in Bennington, the high school Pimental graduated from, and won a state championship at during his terrific high school wrestling career. Mount Anthony has won the Vermont state championship title the past 24 years and they are easily the favorite to win this weekend's tournament which features all kinds of perennial teams from New York and Connecticut.

Last year Wilmington had three place finishers including Perry and Halliday, who both finished fourth.

a sophomore on the first line, are tied for the team lead with 13 points each.

After Andy Owens tipped in a shot from the point from Brian Hurley to make it 1-0 in the second period, the Wildcats scored two in the third to put the game away. McDonough scored a short handed goal with an assist going to senior defenseman John Malone, before McDonough and Andy Owens scored on Foley's goal coming with 3:56 left in the game.

"Just like we did against Masco, we needed to play all three zones in order to beat Lynnfield," said Scanlon. "If you don't play in all three zones, you don't beat these teams."

While Cataldo has been impressive over his years at LHS, Wilmington netminder Joe Aucoin continues to be impressive himself, notching his fifth and sixth wins of the season, making all 20 saves for the shut out against Lynnfield, before making 14 saves in the win over Amesbury.

"Joey has been playing really well," said Scanlon. "He's been making some good saves. He was key for us during this stretch with real good games against Masco and Lynnfield."

Scanlon added that in front of Aucoin are four guys who have also done some great defensive work.

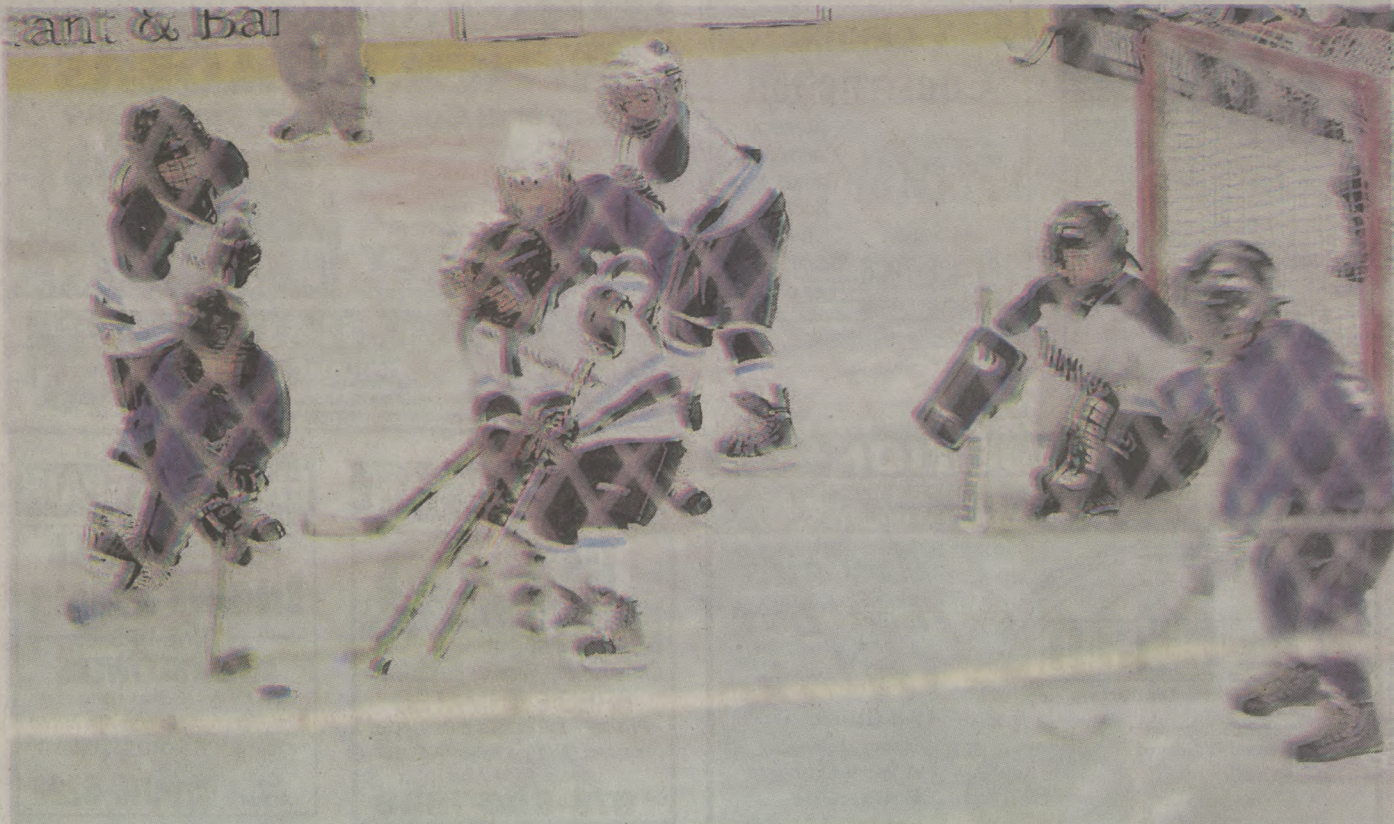

"Brian (Hurley) and John (Malone) had a real good week for us and have been very solid for us so far, but so have Brian Pickett and John Langenfeld," said Scanlon. "When the two of them keep it simple and try not to do too much they are very solid back there. They only get in trouble when they try to do too much."

In the win over Amesbury, Wilmington killed off three penalties to start the game, and then with 5:49 left in the first period, Cam Owens scored an unassisted goal. Then in the second period, McDonough scored two goals, the first coming at the 1:10 mark on assists from McGowan and Foley, and his second came from assists from Cam Owens and Hurley.

Amesbury scored a goal on the opening shift of the third period making it 3-1, before Wilmington put the game away with goals from Pickett and McGowan, while McGowan and Cam Owens picked up assists on the first one, and Foley and McDonough on the second one.

Wilmington was scheduled to face Newburyport in a huge CAL battle on Wednesday night, but with the snow storm it wasn't clear as of presstime if the game was postponed or not. On Saturday Wilmington travels to the Burbank Arena in North Reading to take on a very pesky North Reading team, who always seem to give the Wildcats a struggle regardless of their record. The puck will drop at 8:00 pm.

Two days before Christmas

After fire destroys home, community goes above and beyond for Greene family

By RYAN LAROCHE

Rick Greene is a postal carrier. His job entails going door-to-door to deliver the mail. It's safe to assume Greene has seen a lot. Unfortunately, nothing could prepare him for what he saw on December 23.

That morning he received a phone call to alert him that his house at 51 Hinston Road in Woburn was on fire. Thankfully, his wife and four children weren't home that morning. Sadly, three family dogs perished in the 2-alarm blaze.

There was "very substantial" damage to all three floors of the home, according to Woburn Fire Chief Paul Tortolano.

Firefighters from Woburn, Burlington and Reading assisted in extinguishing the fire which badly damaged the home that sits near Wildwood Street.

No cause for the fire has been revealed, though at the time Chief Tortolano said, "We think it may be a problem with the heating system or an electrical malfunction... but that still needs to be determined."

Regardless of what caused the fire, Greene said he wasn't sure the house could be saved. He noted that it looked pretty bad when he returned to the area to salvage some things from inside.

"They might have to tear it down," he remarked. "They (the insurance company) haven't told me."

One of the things Greene went back for was a frame containing his Winter Classic hockey tickets from a year ago when the Bruins hosted the Philadelphia Flyers at Fenway Park. The Bruins won 2-1 in overtime.

The postal carrier, who works in Winchester, said he has season tickets and, in fact, took his wife, Elizabeth, to her first game recently. It turned out to be a 3-1 loss to the Minnesota Wild last Thursday night. Perhaps not the best way to begin your Bruins experience, but clearly a welcome return to normalcy after such a tragic event.

"It was life-changing," Greene said of the fire and the resulting outpouring of support the community has shown.

Since that fateful December day, clothes, toys, cards and so much else has flooded the Woburn Country Club where donations were being collected. In fact, so much has come in that the Greene family was able to ship some of it back out.

The father of four said he gave some of the excess (four to five bags worth) to the Chelsea Salvation Army after a fire on Spruce Street claimed one life on Christmas day.

"We received so much clothing that didn't fit and so many duplicate toys," Greene remarked. He said the family got so much they had to put some in storage and in the basement.

It even keeps coming. The Woburn resident, who called the community "awesome" for all they've done, said people at his and his wife's work continue to ask what they need for their house.

Greene called the outpouring of support crazy. "I wish I could go door-to-door and shake everyone's hand," he admitted.

The family may have lost everything, but they gained so much back thanks to the generosity of local residents from Woburn and surrounding communities. When asked if he'd call the multitude of donations an embarrassment of riches, he could only say, "Yeah that's basically what I'd call it."

After the fire, the family was put up in the Holiday Inn by the Showcase Cinemas in Woburn. Currently, they reside on Skyview Lane in a three-bedroom house near the Winchester line. Greene called the new place awesome and said while he appreciates the Holiday Inn, it was starting to get cramped. The kids, though, will miss the pool, he said.

Overall, the father of four said his family is doing really well. Though they miss the dogs, the family has been offered the opportunity to adopt other dogs, including

Greene to S-4

BETSY GREENE TAKES A MOMENT TO LOOK OVER THE LARGE SELECTION OF TOYS donated (above) to the family at the Woburn Country Club recently. At left, Woburn firefighters work to extinguish the fire at 51 Hinston Road just before Christmas. Ricky Greene called the outpouring of support crazy. "I wish I could go door-to-door and shake everyone's hand," he admitted.

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"THE KING'S SPEECH" VERY WELL DONE

"THE KING'S SPEECH" TELLS THE STORY OF the British Royal family after the death of King George V and the renouncing of King Edward VIII. Colin Firth plays Bertie, the stuttering second son who ascends to the throne. It is a great movie with great actors.

"THE KING'S SPEECH"

GRADE: ****

One of the best films of the season doesn't key on explosions, big action scenes, or spectacular special effects. Instead, it's all about the British Royal family.

The plot of the film is as follows: after the death of his father, King George V (Michael Gambon) and the renouncing of King Edward VIII (Guy Pearce), Bertie (Colin Firth), who has suffered from a debilitating speech impediment a strong stutter, or stammer, to be more exact) all his life, is crowned King George VI of England.

With his country on the brink of war and in need of a leader, his wife, Elizabeth (Helena Bonham Carter), the future Queen Mother, arranges for her husband to see an eccentric speech therapist, Lionel Logue (Geoffrey Rush).

After a rough start, the two embark on an unorthodox course of treatment and eventually form an unbreakable bond. With the support of Logue, his family, his government and Winston Churchill (Timothy Spall), the King will overcome his stammer and deliver a radio-address that inspires his people and unites them in battle. It is based on the true story of King George VI.

While the film shot is billed as a drama, there are many funny lines to go along with some sight gags.

The movie features a great script and two great performances by Firth and Rush. Both are excellent, and Rush is given a role that allows him to showcase another side of his acting abilities he has yet to showcase.

More movies should be made like this one, focused on story characters and dialogue, and not special effects and stunts.

"GULLIVER'S TRAVELS"

GRADE: **

There are few reasons in the world why this classic tale would be remade into a film yet again, and there are even fewer reasons to see this 2010 version, starring Jack Black as Lemuel Gulliver.

The basic story of Swift's classic novel remains here, but it's set in the present day. Black's Gulliver, works in the mail room of a New York newspaper.

He's a comic book-reading, Star Wars-loving nerd with little ambition, but a major crush on one of his co-workers, Darcy (Amanda Peet) the travel editor. Instead of asking her out, he applies for a writing assignment in her department. Despite the fact he has no writing skills, Gulliver impresses Darcy so much so that she doesn't check on his writing background and she promotes him out of his mailroom job and into the position of a travel writer, sending him off on an all-expenses paid trip to investigate the Bermuda Triangle.

As they always do in the Triangle, strange things happen, and he washes up on the beach in the land of Lilliput, where he's a giant.

He's captured and chained by nasty general Edward (Chris O'Dowd), though he's freed by King Billy Connolly and Queen Catherine Tate when he defends Lilliput against its enemies.

He helps Horatio (Jason Segal) woo Princess Emily Blunt using song lyrics.

There are a few chuckles to be had, mainly based on Gulliver retelling his life as if he were a main character in Star Wars and Titanic, but that's not worth the price of admission. The film's idea of a big joke is having Black's huge naked butt land on a little man. LOL - not.

Black looks and feels like he's just going through the motions here. Billy Connolly, Emily Blunt and Jason Segal are given nothing to work with here, and flounder in characters which must have looked better on paper than how they translated to the screen. The only actor who seems to enjoy the film is O'Dowd, the villain of the piece and the only character who actually has anything funny to say or do in the whole film.

"TRUE GRIT"

GRADE: ***

The Coen Brothers have made a great Western, as odd as that may sound to longtime fans of their handiwork behind the lens. Their version of the novel True Grit, made famous by a 1969 film starring John Wayne, they have loaded their guns with plenty of the Coen Brothers wit, while staying true to the classic Western genre.

The Coens are known for twisting normal film conventions and making them their own and while its true that here with True Grit they successfully inject flair and humor into the cowboy flick arena, they stay true to what fans of these movies look for - justice, often found at the business end of a gun barrel.

The plot involves three characters: the rough and ragged old marshal Reuben "Rooster" Cogburn (Jeff Bridges); Mattie (Hailee Steinfeld), a teenage girl who's hired Cogburn to hunt down and kill her father's murderer; and, LeBoeuf (Matt Damon), a Texas Ranger insistent who wants to tag along to take part in some of the action that follows Rooster around that he has heard so much about. The three ride the plains in search of the elusive Tom Chaney (Josh Brolin), the man that Mattie wants dead.

Bridges plays Rooster as a the prototypical movie lawman, who has no regrets and whose quick wit never leaves him wanting for a witty phrase as he pulls the trigger. He's no John Wayne, but you wouldn't expect him to be - the Dude is practically the polar opposite of the Duke, after all.

Damon is very good, full of honor and wishing that someone, anyone, had heard of him as he arrives on the scene.

In true Coen brothers fashion, Bridges' Cogburn doesn't ride off into the sunset after a job well done, ala John Wayne. The same can be said for the movie overall. It's not a great film, but a very good one.

"TRON: LEGACY"

GRADE: ***

Three decades is a long time to wait for a sequel, but for fans of the original TRON, it's well worth it. But this new version, while filled with spectacular visuals and great action scenes, will be tough to follow for anyone unfamiliar with the story line.

The plot is as follows: In the first film, arcade owner Kevin Flynn (Jeff Bridges) disappeared at the height of his success, leaving his young son Sam (Garrett Hedlund) alone. After receiving a pager message, Sam finds his way into the same data stream world his father entered in the first film, and finds his father working against the same forces he created. A mysterious program called Quorra (Olivia Wilde) may be the key behind all of it, and Sam develops a relationship with her.

The main theme of the film is loss of identity due to corruption of the soul is the message at the heart of Tron Legacy. Visually, the film is mind-numbingly beautiful. The lightcycle races, which have been featured heavily in the advertising campaign for this film, are taught, fast, and will have you on the edge of your seat. The games, involving throwing discs to short out your digital opponent, were great. And for those that choose to pay the higher price, the 3D actually works and looks good.

Jeff Bridges is very good, and plays opposite a 20-year younger version of himself at times in the film. He is up to the task, but the effects used to pull this off aren't, unfortunately. Flynn looks fake, slightly off, which happens when you put a digitally-altered face (the age lines have been removed) on the body of someone else. It just doesn't work well, and it's my one big complaint with the film.

If you enjoyed the original film, the minute Sam walks into Flynn's Arcade and Journey starts playing will make you emotional. Is this actually happening again, all these years later? A new TRON movie? Really?

But as great as that is for fans, I think many people will get lost trying to follow along with this storyline, because they are unfamiliar with the movie. There is a reveal at the end of the film that you simply won't understand if you don't see the original first.

TRON: Legacy is visually stunning, but do your homework before viewing it, to ensure you get the full experience.

Everyone's favorite polar bear

Remembering Major at the Stone Zoo

Stone Zoo has just "pulled the plug" on its successful annual holiday attraction "Zoolights" so it's a good time to reflect on another very popular seasonal event that took place for many years every January.

It's impossible to speak of our local treasure without fond memories of everyone's favorite polar bear "Major". He was the "poster bear" that galvanized the surrounding communities to successfully fight for the reopening of the Stone Zoo after its brief closure in the early 1990s.

Many readers will recall that every January for many years, hundreds of Major's fans gathered to celebrate his birthday in grand style. The highlight of the party (besides the gigantic birthday cake for the guests) was always the excitement of watching "Major" dive into his icy pool to fetch his gift from the keepers - a hearty fish-sicle!

For those of you who need a little reminder - "Major" was the star attraction since his arrival at the Stone Zoo in 1975. He weighed about 900 pounds, stood over 8' tall and lived to be 33 years old - the oldest known polar bear in captivity. He was put to sleep in June of 2000 after a long bout with cancer. His presence at the zoo is still greatly missed every day.

The memory of "Major", as well as the history of the Stone Zoo still deserves to be retold. Upon his death, the National Coalition for Educational and Cultural Programs, Inc. (NCECP), a nonprofit agency and the Stoneham Savings Bank with support from Community Connection Yellow Pages based in Melrose, joined forces to create the "Major, the Polar Bear Scholarship". The scholarship ensures that he is not forgotten and encourages higher education at the same time.

The first award of $500 was made in June of 2001 to a deserving student and has continued each year thereafter thanks to your support. The NCECP is pleased to inform readers that as a result of everyone's generosity, the award was increased to $1000 in 2010.

Your help is always needed to continue this scholarship for years to come. Checks in any amount are greatly appreciated and should be made payable to the "Major, the Polar Bear Scholarship" and mailed to the NCECP, PO Box 80255, Stoneham, MA 02180.

Questions about the NCECP or the scholarship may be directed to volunteer, Bee Russo, c/o NCECP at 781-279-4658, email info@ncecp.org.

The NCECP is a nonprofit organization celebrating its 20th year "benefitting children by supporting parents & teachers since 1991".

TELEVISED IN TEWKSBURY

"The Tewksbury School Committee will televise their biannual faculty-administration workshop/retreat this year on January 26th, a Wednesday, at 5:30 pm," notes the Tewksbury "Town Crier."

"It will be the first time the workshop, designed to give educators and the administration an open forum to address the issues confronting their school system, is televised."

"The move offers residents the opportunity to better understand the decisions the administration makes and the approaches teachers take toward educating Tewksbury students. It will highlight the dialogue that continues between the organizers and the operators of Tewksbury's education system. Many, both in the school committee and the school system, feel that the more residents can see what the schools are doing to best prepare their students the more it will benefit residents and the school system."

"The choice to televise wasn't welcomed by all, though. It also raised the eyebrows of certain members of the School committee and of the Schools' Superintendent, John O'Connor.

ing the interests of many people, such as chocolate lovers, wine lovers, movie lovers, and sports fans.

For more information about the band, visit www.MCBconcertband.org. The band is led by conductor, Mark E. Olson.

The concert is on March 19, at 8:00 pm (doors open at 7:00 pm) and March 20, 3:00 pm (doors open at 2:00 pm) at the Americal Civic Center, 467 Main Street, Wakefield, MA.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and children. Tickets can be ordered through www.mcbconcertband.org/valetyconcert.htm, tickets@mcbconcertband.org, 781-279-0108, or at the door. Table seating is available.

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

SEEING, HEARING, BELIEVING

"O'Connor suggested that, 'some administrators may not be comfortable speaking publicly about sensitive matters, like student performance and issues in the schools.'

"O'Connor and others worry that, because the event will be televised, honest and open discourse could be compromised. The retreat, originally proposed by the previous Superintendent, Christine McGrath, was designed to encourage frank discussions that brought about concrete results and true understanding between the faculty and the administration. Once the event is televised, some worry that it will also be politicized, crippling its productive powers."

"The School System faces a budget shortfall of $1.6 to $2.5 million next year. The communications between the administration and the faculty are integral to facing those shortfalls. And, for the faculty the shortfall means some will need to be laid off. The town's future conversations will be an important part in solving those issues."

"The public should know what's going on," said Committee member Dennis Francis...."

TO BE HEARD IN WINCHESTER

"This is the most challenging budget process I've been involved in since coming to Winchester," Superintendent William McAlduff told the School Committee," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Just nine days before the committee is scheduled to vote on its budget request for next year, McAlduff was asking for guidance from the School Committee regarding the bottom line for the budget. According to McAlduff's figures, with a 4.05 percent increase over last year, there would be barely enough to fund a level-services budget and yet the Town Manager and Board of Selectmen have asked the School Department to look also at lower figures."

"Due to the town's fiscal position, it is impossible to include in the budget everything the principals and department directors recommended to address increasing enrollment, support, and state mandated services. That list was assembled and would require a 9.31 percent increase."

"Although that size increase is clearly impossible, it is not clear what additions to the budget are feasible. During the fall, a three-year plan for the education budget was developed which included a 4.05 percent increase. However, the Town Manager recently asked that the School Department look at alternate plans with 3.55 percent and three percent increases."

"On top of that, the Board of Selectmen asked that the schools look at a budget growth figure which is the same as enrollment growth. A range of figures exists for next year's projected enrollment. For the budget exercise, McAlduff used 2.7 percent....

"...The public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Thursday Jan. 13. On Jan. 18, following submission of the budget, the School Committee has been invited to join the Board of Selectmen for another budget discussion..."

ON THE LINE IN WILMINGTON/READING

"The Casa di Fior function hall in Wilmington has been sold to a Lexington church for $3.2 million. Beginning about Easter, religious services will be held there," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"The Casa di Fior began more than 50 years ago as a coffee truck depot. As the business grew, owner Al Fiorenza added a function hall and expanded it. By the time it was sold this month, the building already looked like a church. The final addition several years ago included a grand entrance with steeple."

"Grace Chapel, a non-denominational Evangelical church in Lexington, will adapt the facility into a satellite campus. Campus pastor Tom Van Antwerp will conduct the services in Wilmington with a sermon by Pastor Bryan Wilkerson simulcast from the Lexington chapel..."

"The facility is prominently located facing Route 93, at 128 West St., near the Reading line. It was first developed commercially by Fiorenza in the 1950's and 1960's"

•Senior alternate captain Brian Gibbons scored twice and goaltender John Muse recorded 30 saves to lead Boston College to the Ledyard National Bank Classic title with a 4-1 non-league win over Mercyhurst before 2,828 fans at Dartmouth College's Thompson Arena.

BC scored two times on the power play in the opening period. Freshman forward Kevin Hayes netted his second collegiate goal at 5:08 and Gibbons doubled the lead at 12:50.

After Mercyhurst halved the BC lead with its only goal at 3:04 of the second period, the teams played scoreless hockey for the next 35:36 until Gibbons put the Eagles back up two goals at 18:40 of the final frame.

Junior Barry Almeida scored into an empty net with 14.4 seconds remaining for the 4-1 final.

BC outshot Mercyhurst 38-31, including a 17-8 edge in the first period.

Muse recorded eight stops in each of the first and third periods and 14 in the middle stanza to earn his 12th win of the season and the 74th of his career.

Mercyhurst goaltender Ryan Zapolski stopped 34 shots in the losing effort and falls to 6-7-1.

Gibbons and DEFENSEMAN JOE WHITNEY OF READING each earned All-Tournament honors while junior forward Paul Carey was named the tournament most valuable player. Carey assisted on Gibbons' first goal of the game and finished with four points - two goals and two

• The Merrimack baseball program has inked nine student-athletes to National Letters of Intent during the early signing period for the 2011-12 academic year.

"Due to the strong academic reputation of Merrimack College and the support of the athletic administrative staff, we were able to sign a great class after a short recruiting period," said first-year head coach Jim Martin, who took the reins of the Warrior baseball program in October 2010. "These players are all highly-skilled, hard working and quality student-athletes on and off the field. They will have a great opportunity to contribute to the baseball program in the spring of 2012."

In 2010, the Warriors posted a 21-19 overall record with a 14-12 mark in the Northeast-10 Conference. Sophomore southpaw Mike Laracy (Weymouth, Mass.) is the lone All-Conference selection returning this spring. Laracy earned a spot on the Northeast-10 Conference All-Rookie squad.

Student-athletes that have signed National Letters of Intent for the 2011-12 season include CHRIS PESSOTTI, A LEFT-HANDED PITCHER FROM BURLINGTON. Pessotti played three years of baseball at Burlington, and received an MIAA Sportsmanship Award. A Northeast All-Star selection, he was also a Tompkins Summer League MVP and all-star. He played on the Billerica Post in American Legion.

Greene

two Labrador retrievers. Breeders have also called offering the children puppies. Greene said they might adopt later.

While the Greene's lost so much, they gained a new perspective on life. Ever since the fire, family has come from all over to check in and make sure things are well.

"It is just unbelievable," Greene said of the outpouring of support. "I have no words for it."

Speaking to that support, even the state police got in on the act. A friend of the family contacted Kerra Huchowski, a civil coordinator for the Toys for Tots program, who quickly assembled a large load of items for the family.

"It helps provide a bright spot in a dark time," said State Trooper Sgt. Matthew Murray, who connected the friend to Huchowski. "It's just great when a community comes together to help a family in need."

Although Greene and his family may have been forced out of their Hinston Road home, he said he doesn't want to leave the area.

"I love the neighborhood," he said. "And I could never leave Woburn."

Another thing Greene loves is his new autographed Bruins hockey stick, which he received at the game Thursday night. He said his memorabilia perished in the blaze. As a season-ticket holder, the team took good care of him.

And as a resident, the City of Woburn took good care of him and his family. It was a genuine Christmas miracle and a great start to the new year.

Stoneham family The privilege of being a foster parent

STONEHAM - Lynda Allard and her husband Doug have been foster parents in Stoneham since 2002. Before becoming a foster mom, Lynda was an executive at a local software company. When that company relocated, she and her husband decided that she should take a break from the business world and stay home with their kids.

One day Lynda saw an ad in the paper looking for safe, loving foster homes with stay-at-home parents. The ad was for Dare Family Services, a treatment foster care agency specializing in providing therapeutic care to children and teens who have been severely abused or neglected. Lynda immediately called Dare to find out more.

Allard's questions came pouring out. She knew next to nothing about the process or the program, but it was clear that she had something special to offer children in need. She was a strong, intelligent and caring person with a sense of humor and a desire to help others.

One of her questions was, "Am I a good match to become a foster parent?" She didn't come from what some would consider an ideal background. When she was young, her dad left her family; then she lost a sibling to an accident. Her mom worked a lot to provide basic necessities for her and her siblings.

Her worries were relieved when the recruiter explained that foster parents come from all walks of life.

"Sometimes a person who has been through experiences such as Lynda's are better able to understand and associate with kids from similar backgrounds," said Janelle Moore, the foster parent recruiter for Dare Family Services.

"It's not uncommon for foster parents to have experienced some form of trauma or abuse or neglect in their pasts. They know how it feels; they know what it takes to get your life on track after something like that," Moore said.

When a child first comes into Allard's home, she tells them, "We all have a clean slate."

"You have to earn their respect just like they have to earn yours," Allard said. "I'm proud when they accomplish simple milestones that many of my kids don't know."

According to Moore, a support system is crucial to both the foster child and the foster parents.

Allard said the Stoneham community has given her tremendous support over her years as a foster parent.

"The school system, the special education department, the teachers, my local church, First Congregational, and early intervention have gone above and beyond for my kids," she said. "You have made it possible for these kids to have the best services and support they could possibly have within our means."

Dare foster parents receive continual training and support that allows them to be integral members of the clinical treatment team for each child or teen.

If thinking about doing foster care, consider your situation at home first. Do you have enough bedrooms? Is your home safe for a child? Do you have other kids at home, and how would they handle 'sharing' their parents with another child? Do you or your spouse/partner have a criminal or social services history that could limit your ability to foster? Do you have a driver's license and a car, so you can drive to all meetings and visits regarding the child? Do you have the personality and the skills/experience that would allow you to be a strong advocate for your foster child?

Here's some food for thought....these kids will be in charge of our future as we age. Are you tough enough to step up to the plate and make the difference in the life of a teen?

Call Janelle at Dare Family Services and tell her Lynda sent you. (617) 628-3696. Training starts soon. www.darefamily.org

Protecting hardwood floors

Roughly half of all homes have hardwood flooring, and industry professionals suspect more and more homeowners are looking to hardwood flooring for their homes.

When surveyed, 90 percent of real estate agents have said that hardwood flooring is a desirable feature in a home. Those agents also say property with hardwood flooring sells faster than one with carpeting or another flooring option.

With hardwood flooring so prevalent in homes, protecting those beautiful wood floors is a major priority for homeowners. Caring for hardwood floors only takes some common sense precautions and minimal maintenance. Today's hardwood floors are often produced with durable sealants that protect the wood underneath or are comprised of composite or reclaimed wood products. But that doesn't mean precautions should be taken to further protect against potential damage to the flooring.

* Place area rugs or mats at the doorways entering the home. This way sand, dirt and other debris can be wiped off at the entryway and not carried onto the wood flooring where it can cause abrasions over time.

* Pay careful attention to which types of shoes are worn on the floors. High heels or cleats can damage the wood. Removing shoes prior to walking on the floor is a safer bet.

* Choose the right type of cleaner for the floor. Do not assume just because a particular cleaner is adequate for wood cabinetry or furniture that it is also fine for wood flooring. Check the label.

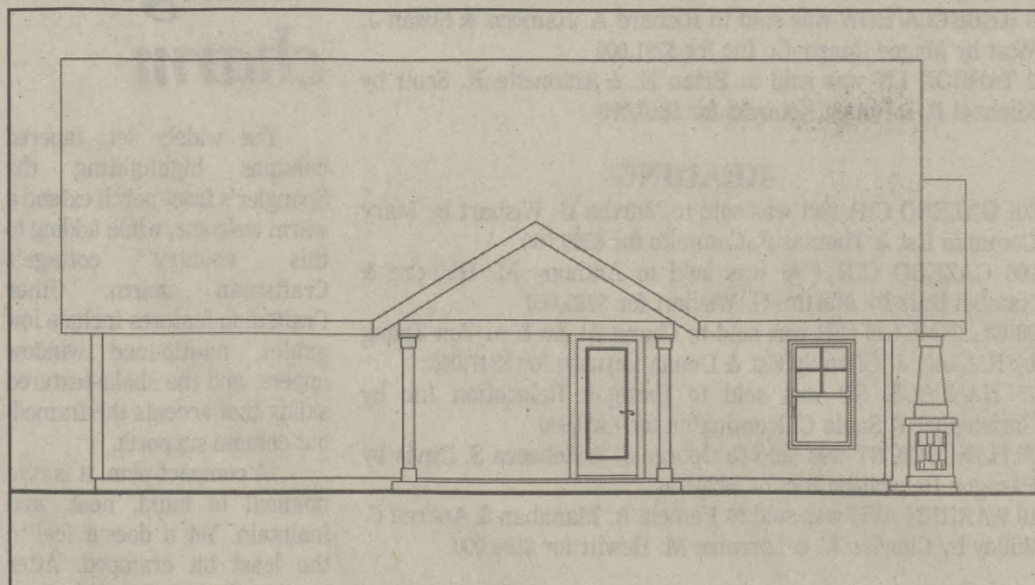

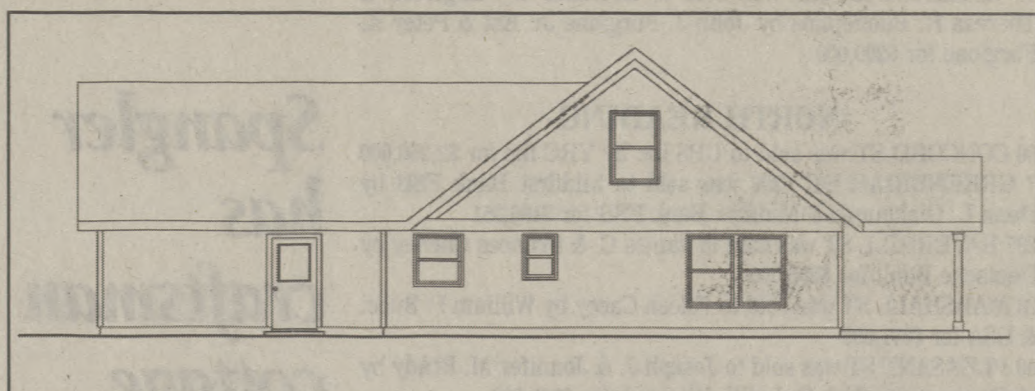

* Use area rugs and carpet runners on areas of the floor that tend to be high-traffic areas. This will prevent these areas from being worn down unevenly from other areas of the floor.

* Do not allow water or other liquids to stand on the floor for a long duration. This can cause degradation of the wood and staining.

* Use felt or plastic protectors on the "feet" of dining room chairs or other furniture to prevent against scuffing or scratches.

Wood flooring can be an expensive addition to any home, but one that is sought after for its aesthetic appeal. To ensure a floor remains in good condition over the long haul, take action to protect hardwood floors as soon as possible

This Week's Sampler: The Spangler

Spangler has craftsman cottage charm

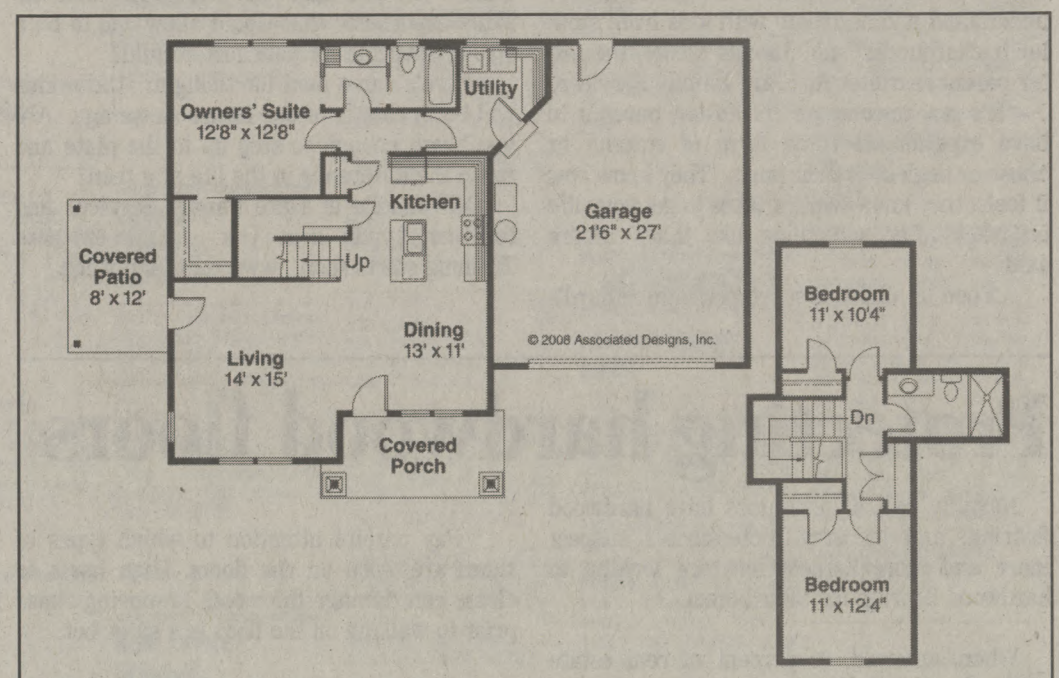

The widely set, tapered columns highlighting the Spangler's front porch extend a warm welcome, while adding to this country cottage's Craftsman charm. Other Craftsman features include low gables, multipaned window uppers, and the shake-textured siding that accents the framed-out column supports.

A compact plan, it is economical to build, heat, and maintain. Yet it doesn't feel in the least bit cramped. After passing through the wide front porch, you step inside a much wider open space where the living room, dining room and kitchen flow seamlessly together. Natural light washes in through two large windows in front, a slender window on the side, and an atrium door that leads out onto a covered side patio.

Counters and cabinets line two walls of the kitchen. A large island adds more of both, and a deep pantry nestles under the stairway. Sink and dishwasher are on the inner side of the island, while a handy eating bar spans the other side. When bowls of breakfast cereal, lunch soups and sandwiches, or light suppers are eaten here, clean up couldn't be easier.

Laundry appliances are nearby, in a pass-through utility room that links with the garage. This room comes complete with cabinetry and a folding counter.

The owners' suite and a bathroom are also on the main floor. The two-section bathroom has an entrance right off the hall from the kitchen, but it also has another door that links it directly to the owners'
